TWO CENTS

A WALL OF DEATH

Blocks Entrance to Red Ash Mine,
West Virginia.

DEAD AND DYING BEHIND.

At Least Ten Bodies Were Taken Out by
Rescuers.

PROBABLY 40 YET ENTOMBED.

Altogether the Victims May Number 50
—Had the Explosion Occurred an Hour
Later, More Men Would Have Been in
the Mine and the Number of Victims
Greater—Thirty-seven of Those Dead
or Still in the Mine—Some Were Too
Mutilated for Identification—The General Belief Is That the Explosion Was Caused by Dust Being Ignited From
Lamps—Sad Scenes at the Mine Mouth.

FIRE CREEK, W. Va., March 7.—The first reports of the explosion at Red Ash mine were greatly exaggerated. The latest reports since are that there were only 50 miners entombed instead of 125. Only ten bodies have been taken out so far instead of 37, as previously reported, but it is believed that all of the 40 that are still in the mine will never be found alive. The explosion happened as the men were going into the mine in groups, and in couples in some instances, and they were strung along in this manner for over a mile, so that the work of rescue will require a long time. There were more men near the entrance who escaped than were lost.

The Red Ash mine is a large drift, and the explosion occurred near the entrance, which was thus closed by the falling slate, entombing a large number of miners.

The scene of the disaster is between this place and Thurmond, on the south branch of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway, and every assistance possible was rendered by the railway company and by the adjoining mining towns. Relief parties from great distances arrived as soon as possible. State Mine Inspector Pinckney, with a corps of experts and many workmen, has been on the ground, rendering all assistance possible and devoting his attention more toward relief than to an official investigation as to the cause of the disaster.

J. Fred Ellinger, of Staunton, Va., the principal owner of the mines, spared no effort in the work of rescue and relief, and his manager, Ferdinand Howell, had all the men available at work in trying to clear away the debris and rescue the entombed men. The managers and bosses of all the mines in this district came to the scene as soon as possible and joined in the work of rescue. It is impossible to describe the amount of work done by this concentrated army of men, but they were greatly impeded because of the extent of the enormous blockade at the entrance to the drift. The large heavy side tires of the entrance were blown out to some distance, together with a lot of heavy timbers. Even mules were blown out some distance.

The force of such an explosion caused an immediate falling of the slate and other debris, so that the entrance was filled up for a great distance and the difficulties in digging through it caused delay in the work of rescue. As many men as could work at one time were digging away with all their might and were relieved in short relays by other men so as to expedite the work of rescuing as many as possible.

At the first successful strike of the workers 10 bodies were recovered. Seven of them were already dead and the other three were dying. As the miners were located at different places in the drift, and the explosion caused the falling slate to blockade the rooms in different parts of the mine, the work of rescue met with one great obstruction after another. At the mouth of the mine the scene was beyond description, the wives and children and the neighbors of those who were known to be entombed were there in full force, and their anxiety and distress were most intense. While they were all seeking to help those who were rescued and to get the mine reopened, yet these bereaved people were for the most part in the way of the rescuers and had to be held back from the entrance.

The mine is one of the largest in West Virginia and was very heavily timbered in the different drifts. It was for this reason feared that those who had not been killed by falling debris at the time of the explosion would be pinioned by these connecting timbers and suffer death from suffocation. Air was forced into the mine by engines on the surface, which were kept working after the explosion, but it was found that air could be pumped into the drift for only a short distance, as the coal, stone and earth shut off all possibility of reaching the interior. The pumps and all other machinery in the mine were demolished, so that everything had to be done through temporary arrangements on the surface.

After the men got under headway in the work of rescue, they reached the first party in less than an hour, but they met greater difficulties after that time. It was then that telegrams were sent to Montgomery, Charleston and other places for physicians, nurses and caskets, but during the greater part of the day there was use only for the caskets.

The estimates on the number in the mines when the explosion occurred are based on the number who entered at a 7 o'clock. The manager stated that by 8 o'clock or 8:30 a.m. there would have been twice as many men in the mines.

The population of this mining village is only 500. All are miners, and the calamity will reach almost every little home in the town.

Those working on the rescue relays said that the scene became more terrible as they got further into the mine. The men become almost faint of heart when they stuck a place filled with dead bodies.

Most of the bodies that cannot be identified or recognized have been placed in the large blacksmith shop of the Red Ash Coal company, and that place presents the appearance of a horrible morgue. Although the bodies are mangled beyond recognition, yet they are surrounded by those who are in distress and hunting their lost friends.

The general belief is that the explosion occurred by contact with dust when the miners entered with their lights and that it was not due to fire damp, as has been currently reported all day. Nearly all the men employed in the mine were white, only about one-fifth being colored, and most of the men were married and had families in the little cottages near the tipple of the great mine.

Some of the bodies were so mangled as to be beyond recognition.

Among the dead and those known to have gone into the mine were these:

B. B. Long, fire boss.
Fret Long, workman.
Tom Long, trapper.

UPRISING OF DUTCH

Joined by Others in Prieska and Kenhardt Districts.

PIET WOOLMAN IS THE LEADER.

Joubert Reported In Command of Boers
Near Osfontein—Supplies Being Pushed
Forward to Roberts—Both Armies Preparing for a Struggle.

CAPETOWN, March 7.—Nearly the whole of the Dutch population of the Prieski and Kenhardt districts are in rebellion. Many of the Dutch from neighboring districts are reported to have joined them, notably Piet Woolman, who will lead the rebels.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch to The Standard from Osfontein, dated Sunday, March 4, contained the following:

"General Joubert is reported to be in supreme command of the Boer forces here."

LONDON, March 7.—Mr. Roberts still pauses in the neighborhood of Osfontein while stores, rearmounts and fresh troops stream toward him from the Cape. The British position also continues to improve in the minor spheres of the campaign. Natal is clear of Boers and Cape Colony is nearly so.

The Boers seemingly are pursuing the course commanded by the strategists, and are concentrating to resist the British main army. Various messages from correspondents with Lord Roberts report that the enemy are increasing continually on his front.

ATTACK ON CECIL RHODES.

London Paper Said He Would Some Time Defy England.

LONDON, March 7.—The Morning Leader contains the following: "Of one thing we may be certain, Cecil Rhodes, who knows South Africa, has made up his mind that the annexation of the republics will not bring the lasting peace which our imperialists prophesy. Mr. Rhodes is so sure that this will not happen that he is prepared to set to work at once on the fortifications of Kimberley."

"We incline to think that Mr. Rhodes is preparing for a possible armed conflict with the imperial faction which he fought at the polls and in parliament until 1895. He is preparing to resist any attempt on their part to interfere in South African affairs either in the Dutch elector, which vote is already threatened, or of the Kaffir laborer, who seems doomed to virtual slavery."

"That is not, indeed, an extravagant hypothesis. Rhodes has consistently maintained a policy of Africa for the Afrikander, and on his lips the latter word is synonymous with financiers. He will be loyal to the English flag just so long as it continues to be a valuable commercial asset."

BRITISH OCCUPIED STORMBERG.

General Buller Reported Natal Practically Clear of Boers.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch from Lord Roberts contained the following:

"OSFONTEIN, March 6.—General Gatacre occupied Stormberg yesterday. The lines of railway north and west will now be repaired. General Clements is at Joubert's siding station, beyond Colesberg. The Duke of Marlborough, with the Oxford company of the Imperial Yeomanry, has left Cape Town for Nieuwpoort."

"General Buller reports Natal now practically clear of the enemy, and that he cannot hear of any formed body of them anywhere. The Boers left some ambulances full of their sick, from which the mules had been taken for transport service."

GRANTED HAWAII'S REQUEST.

Cabinet Decides to Grant Money Requested to Fight the Plague.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—At the cabinet meeting, the recommendation of the Hawaiian council that they be authorized to expend $300,000 in the suppression of the bubonic plague and in the relief of distressed natives was formally approved. Some doubt was expressed as to the authority of the Hawaiian council to make this expenditure, but the opinion was unanimous that the gravity of the situation justified that course, and the necessary directions will be forwarded at once.

Porto Rico postal affairs were also considered. A large part of the time of the meeting was taken up with a discussion on the Porto Rican tariff bill.

EIGHT AMERICANS KILLED.

Among Those Dead, Reported by General Otis, Was Lieutenant Kochler.
Twenty-Two Wounded.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—General Otis cabled the war department a list of casualties in the Philippines, comprising eight killed and twenty-two wounded. Among those killed was First Lieutenant Edgar F. Kochler, Ninth infantry, who met his death at Tinubia, March 4. He was a native of Illinois.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS MET.

Feasibility of Extending the Order to Foreign Lands Doubted.

NEW HAVEN, March 7.—The annual meeting of the national council, Knights of Columbus, was held in this city.

Several important matters were scheduled for consideration, the most important being the report of a special committee appointed two years ago on the assessment rate in comparison with the mortuary tables of insurance companies and fraternal orders, and petitions from various countries in South America and islands in the West Indies, asking that the order be extended to those territories. Considerable doubt was expressed as to the feasibility of extending the order into foreign lands.

TYPHOID PATIENTS DRIVEN OUT.

Fire at Turtle Creek, Pa., May Have Had Bad Effect on Sick Persons.

PITTSBURG, March 7.—Fire destroyed three dwellings at Turtle Creek, and the three families that occupied the buildings were rendered homeless. One of the houses was occupied by Samuel Wilkison and his family, five members of which were lying in sickbeds at the time of the fire. Mrs. Wilkison and four of the children were ill with typhoid fever, and it is feared that the excitement and exposure which followed the burning of their home may have a bad effect on some of the patients.

Also Letters, Many of Which Contained Tributes to Her Husband's Memory.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—General Corbin turned over to Mrs. Lawton, widow of the late Major General Lawton, the fund subscribed by the people of the country. It amounted to $98,432.07.

ALFRED HARMER DEAD

"Father of the House" Died at Germantown, Pa.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Congressman Alfred C. Harmer, of the Fifth Pennsylvania district, the "Father of the House," died at his home in Germantown, a suburb of this city. Mr. Harmer had been ill since last November, when he was stricken with a severe attack of kidney trouble.

He recovered sufficiently to attend the opening of congress in December, but before the Christmas recess he returned to Philadelphia and has since that time been confined to his bed.

A few days ago he suffered a relapse and steadily failed until last evening, when he died, surrounded by his wife, three sons and two daughters.

COREIN OFFERS TO QUIT.

That Is If Anything Wrong With His Army Record Can Be Found.

Wrote to Davis.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The resolution adopted by the senate calling for a complete record of the court-martial which tried Adjutant General Corbin when lieutenant-colonel of the Fourteenth colored infantry, on a charge of cowardice, and other information as to his military career, called for a mass of papers that will require a week's time to copy according to the estimates of the war department.

General Corbin, in anticipation of the reply, addressed to Senator Davis, of Minnesota, an appeal for an immediate examination of his soldierly record from the day he entered the service of the United States as a 19-year-old boy 48 years ago up to the present time. Moreover, he authorizes the senator to present his (Corbin's) resignation to the president if the search reveals a suggestion of unworthiness. The letter includes the findings of the court-martial which most honorably acquitted Lieutenant-Colonel Corbin of the charge. General Grant's letter conferring upon him two brevets for gallant services at the time he was charged with cowardice, and finally, a letter from the colonel of the regiment who preferred the charge, praising his work in the campaign.

NEW YORK, March 7.—A special grand jury brought in a presentment before Justice Fursman in the criminal term of the supreme court, together with indictments, against six men, making them in part responsible for false reports that had been circulated about Brooklyn rapid transit, with a resulting depression of the stock.

Tongaline

TRADE MARK

"In the fall of 1891 I had a severe attack of muscular rheumatism which settled in my right arm and shoulder. Tongaline was highly recommended to me and I determined to give it a thorough trial. I took six or eight tea-spoonful doses daily, diluted in water, with plenty of hot water and inside of two days was relieved to such an extent that the pain had almost entirely left me. By continuing the treatment a short time longer I was thoroughly cured and I am gratified to state that there has been no recurrence of the trouble. Since then I have frequently recommended Tongaline to friends suffering from rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, etc. and I have yet to hear of a single instance where it failed to cure the disease."

WINE OF CARDUI

Woman Knows Woman.

ZURICH, KAN., Jan. 31.

I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.

MRS. V. M. BOISVERT.

WINE OF CARDUI

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it? Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it.

They Know. They have actual experience to prompt them. They spread the tidings from mouth to mouth, telling how Wine of Cardui helps young girls, helps the weak of all ages, helps and cures all womanly ills.

CITIZEN AND SOLDIER

And Eminently Fitted and Qualified For the Berth to Which He Aspires.

The announcement of C. C. Baker as a candidate for congress in the Eighteenth district will be found in another column. He is known all over this county. He has been a resident of Columbiana county for 37 years. This would entitle him to be considered a home candidate. Since leaving here, and for the past 10 years, he has been a resident of Alliance, not more than a stone's throw from Columbiana county. His parents moved to Unity township when he was 10 years old, where he lived until the outbreak of the civil war.

At the age of 18 he enlisted as a private in Company C, Sixth Ohio cavalry, and served three and one half years. After the war he moved to Fairfield township where he lived until his election as county auditor in 1880. He served two terms as county auditor. No county official ever retired from office enjoying to a higher degree the respect, confidence and good will of the people. He was kind, courteous and considerate, and in addition possessed unusual business qualifications. It was a pleasure to transact business in the auditor's office. Mr. Baker is a successful business man and is thoroughly informed as to the wants of his district. He will be an unusually strong candidate and will make a model representative.

He will look after the interests of his constituents in a thoroughly business-like manner.

HE DIED HAPPY.

Little Charlie Quayle Was Content, With No Fears as to the Future.

In yesterday's edition of the News REVIEW was given an account of the death of a boy by the name of Charlie Quayle, who was bitten by a pet dog, supposed to be mad. The little fellow had no fear of death, having full and complete trust and perfect faith in the Master's mercy. He summoned strong men to his bedside and told them of certain things connected with their lives, features which they fondly hoped had not seen the light of day or gained publicity, and in a kindly, loving manner, obtained the promise from them that the evil things in their lives should cease to exist. Afterwards, Charlie smilingly told a minister of the Gospel respecting the above conversation, and rejoiced in the fact that even a little boy could do much good, assuring the minister that he held no fear of what was called death. It was wonderful testimony. "And a little child shall lead them."

TAYLER'S PLAN.

Columbiana Congressman Has a Scheme for Disposing of Contests.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—[Special]—Congressman R. W. Tayler, who was chairman of the select committee which had charge of the Brigham H. Roberts case, and who is now chairman of the house elections committee No. 1, has a new plan for the hearing and disposition of contested election cases. He proposes that the English system be patterned after by this government; that is, that a commission of three members, none of whom shall be members of congress, be selected, who shall perform the work now done by the elections committee. The commission should be non-partisan and sit as a court, and, if such a thing were possible, should be given final jurisdiction in all the cases which come before it for hearing. Mr. Tayler says he may introduce a bill during the present session embodying this idea.

NOT ENOUGH.

There Is Too Much Work For the Amount of Money Paid the Township Trustees.

The township trustees of this city are very much in favor of the bill introduced in the legislature by a representative from Richland county increasing the salaries of the trustees. The trustees now get $150 per year, and they say it is not enough for the amount of work they have to do. One of the local trustees also thinks it would be a good plan to do away with the three board idea and let one man attend to the work and pay him a good salary. He thinks the work could be done a great deal better this way.

HIGHLY ENDORSED.

What the Republican Paper at the State Capital Says of Mr. Baker.

Ex State Senator Silas J. Wilhams, of Alliance, who recently announced his candidacy for the Republican congressional nomination in the Eighteenth district, in a card published last night, states that, after making a careful canvass of the field, he has decided that he is not the most available man to unite the opposition to Congressman Tayler for the fourth term, and withdraws from the race in favor of Hon. Charles C. Baker, of Alliance, who, it is announced, has consented to become a candidate. Mr. Baker is very popular in Columbiana county, where he served two terms as auditor, and it is claimed he will secure a majority of the delegates in Tayler's own bailiwick, to say nothing of his strength in Stark and Mahoning, where he is looked upon as a sure winner.—Ohio State Journal.

NEW STATE BOARD.

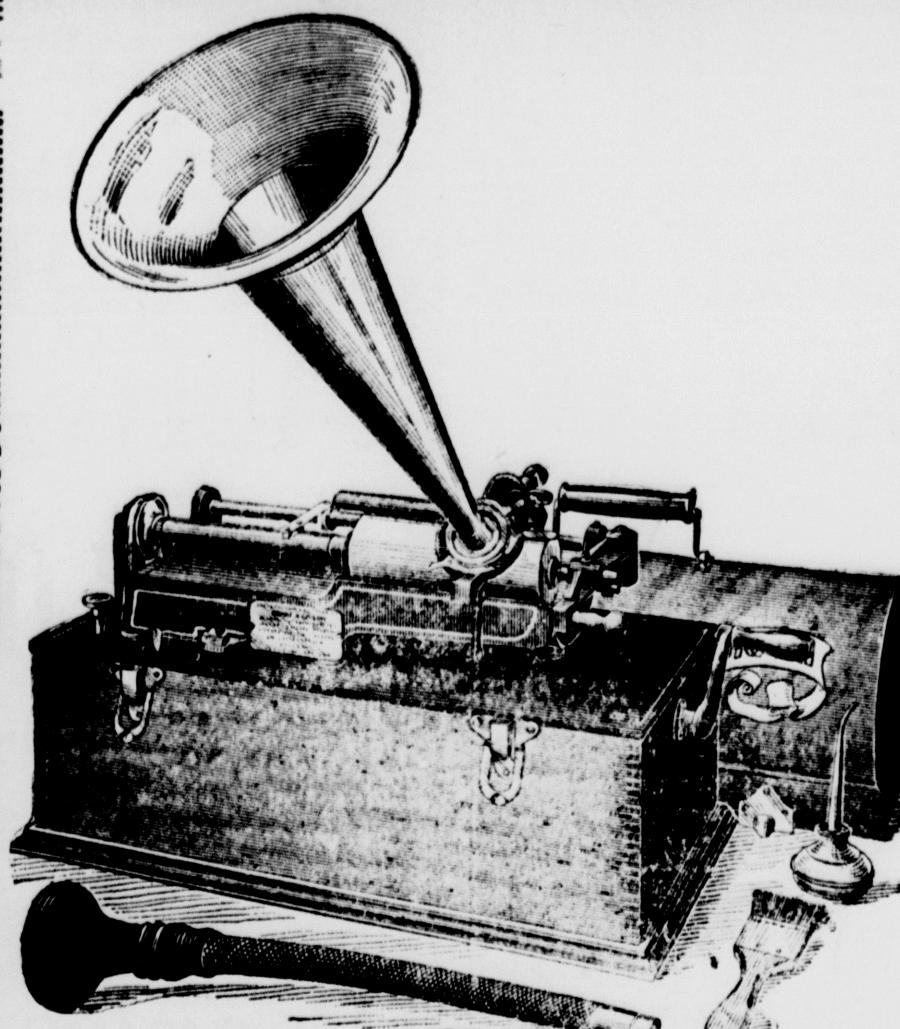

Those who have been asking council to create the office of plumbing inspector will be interested to learn that a bill has been introduced in the state legislature providing for the creation of a state board of examiners and licenses for plumbers, consisting of five members, three of whom must be master plumbers, to examine all plumbers as to their qualifications for pursuing that avocation.

PENSIONS FOR TEACHERS.

The bill now before the legislature for the pensioning of school teachers is meeting with vigorous opposition from the teachers themselves. They claim that the bill will work an injustice in assessing the younger teachers to create a pension fund that the great majority of them will not remain long enough in the profession to enjoy. They have great hopes that all will get married before they have been teaching long enough to draw a pension.

INTERESTING TO DRUGGISTS.

The druggists of the state are interested in a bill now before the legislature which seeks to regulate the sale of patent medicines by prohibiting druggists from recommending any preparation which they have for sale. If the bill becomes a law the druggists say

They will not be allowed to recommend my medicine to a customer for the common ailments, such as colds, sore throats, sprains and a number of other minor sicknesses, and will be prevented from recommending and compounding any simple remedy which might be called for by a person in distress. The doctors favor the bill and the druggists naturally are opposing it.

MARCH 15.

Mr. Smith, when seen this morning, said: "Yes, the works have been sold to the American Clay Manufacturing company. I will turn over the plant to them March 15 and after that date will be out of the sewerpipe business. The transfer includes the plant, the site (eight acres), and all material. All I retain of the original purchase from Knowles, Taylor & Anderson is 26 acres of ground outside the factory site. I have no idea as to whether the plant will be kept running, as I know nothing of the intention of the new owners. I owned the entire 5,000 shares of the company, and the terms of the sale were satisfactory."

An Operation Today.

A FIGHT.

E Schriver and Patrick Maloney Had a Dispute Over a Game of Cards.

Constable Powell yesterday afternoon arrested E. Schriver upon a complaint made by Patrick Maloney. Maloney claimed that he was playing cards in the White Cloud saloon and a dispute arose over the game, when Schriver struck him. He bore the marks of the encounter on his face and when Schriver was taken before Squire Rose he was fined $14.60. When Powell entered the saloon to arrest Schriver he found four men seated around the table and cards on the table. There will probably be another action entered, as there is an ordinance prohibiting card playing in saloons.

VACANCIES.

The Democrats Have Two Persons Who Have No Desire for Office.

The Democrats already have two vacancies on their ticket to fill, as Robert Hill declines to be a candidate for the position of justice of the peace and John Schmelzenbach, who was nominated for the board of education, is a Prohibitionist, and will not be a Democratic candidate. P. J. McKeone's name will not be taken from the ticket until he notifies the secretary, although Mr. McKeone has publicly stated that he is a Republican.

ROBERTS REPORTS BOERS IN RETREAT.

Closely Pursued by Advancing British Troops.

NOT ENGAGEMENT THIS MORNING

Boers, Unable to Meet Roberts' Army, Retreated, With a Brigade of British Hard on Their Rear--Joubert Is Waiting a Chance.

LONDON, March 7.--Special--The war department made public this afternoon a dispatch just received from Lord Roberts, in which the field marshal states that he advanced this morning and that the enemy is in full retreat, closely followed by his troops.

Newspaper dispatches received late this afternoon state that Roberts' army, beyond a short brisk engagement met with little resistance, the overpowering force under the British commander rendering any attempt to make a stand futile. The Boers have now fallen back out of touch with Roberts' force, a detachment of which is endeavoring to hang on to the retreating burghers, so that Roberts may be kept fully posted upon their movements. Meanwhile the British are steadily advancing into the Free state. Joubert and his army are supposed to be in the northeast awaiting a favorable opportunity to attack the invaders.

BOYS STOLE BRASSES

From Engine Rooms of Four Potteries.

THEY WERE CAUGHT IN THE ACT

Monday Evening by Engineer McShane, of the Thompson Pottery, as They Were Coming From the Plant With a Sack Full.

To James McShane, chief engineer at the Thompson pottery, belongs the credit of putting a stop to the stealing of brasses from the engines of several potteries about the city. For some time brass valves, bearings and slides have been missed from the engines when the engineers would go to their work in the morning, but who took the brass was not discovered until Monday night.

McShane was returning to the pottery Monday evening when he noticed several boys coming from the building with a bag. It was so heavy the boys could not make much headway, and McShane, thinking something wrong, stopped the boys and looking into the bag found a lot of brass that had been taken from the engine room a short time before. He took their names and made a report to the office but no arrests have yet been made.

Mr. George Thompson, when seen today, said: "It is estimated that we have had at least $150 worth of brass taken from our engine room, but a portion of this has been recovered. The boys took the brass from our factory and sold it to a junk dealer in Center alley. We have decided not to make any prosecutions unless we find that we cannot recover all that has been taken. The dealers who received the brass have said they would return all."

It is stated that brass has been taken from the engines at the Cartwright, Laughlin No 1 and Knowles, Taylor & Knowles potteries, and it is thought the same crowd of boys were implicated in each instance.

A DAY IN WALL STREET.

Final Disposition of Financial Bill
Evidently Awaited by Bull Contingent.
Features of Market.

NEW YORK, March 7.—On the Stock Exchange, Tuesday, very earnest efforts were made to weaken Sugar, but the utmost that could be achieved was a three point decline, offerings of the stock being comparatively light. Third Avenue was strong, rising an extreme $6\frac{1}{2}$ and imparting sympathetic strength to the other local traction stocks. The most notable examples of the bear tactics were furnished by the international paper stocks, the common falling $4\frac{1}{2}$ and rallying $2\frac{1}{4}$, and the preferred falling $7\frac{1}{2}$ and rallying 4 ; Pressed Steel Car, which dropped $7\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied 5 ; American Hoop, which fell $3\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied $1\frac{1}{2}$; Standard Rope and its bond issues, which were raided down from $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 8 points, with rallies extending from 1 to nearly 4 points, and People's Gas, which fell $1\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied $2\frac{1}{2}$.

Practically all the iron and steel stocks were down from 1 to 2 points, and many recovered a good portion of the loss and there were other less striking examples all through the list of specialties. In the railroad list St. Paul, Burlington and Baltimore and Ohio showed an extreme decline of a point or over, but the net changes in the railroads are small throughout. It is evident that the final disposition of the financial bill by congress is awaited by the bull contingent, who are generally confident that the provisions for additional bank circulation will be enacted into law and will result in a notable expansion of the currency.

The large buying of government bonds by national banks all over the country, and the expert estimates which are current of the profit offered on circulation by the new provisions, are the grounds of this confidence. Meantime the money market is working constantly closer, and the favorable factors in the outlook are ignored, in the fear that the available supply of money will not bridge the interval until the expected relief.

The bond market was dull and irregular. Total sales, par value, \$1,335,000. United States old 4's and 5's advanced $\frac{1}{2}$ and the 3's $\frac{1}{2}$ in the bid price.

The Chicago Grain Market.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The prediction of a cold wave, a higher spot market at Liverpool, firmness in northwestern markets and talk of export business were supports in a fairly active wheat market Tuesday, May closing $\frac{3}{8}$ @ $\frac{1}{2}$ c over Monday. May corn closed $\frac{1}{2}$ c and May oats $\frac{1}{2}$ c up. Provisions were dull, but closed a trifle improved.

Fool the Bees and the People.

"People buy comb honey," said a man from the country, "believing that the fact that it is sealed by the honest little bee precludes the possibility of fraud. The fact is that the bees of many professional 'honey' raisers do nothing the livelong summer but pack glucose into their hives from an open barrel that is left standing close by. The bee will not search fragrant flowers the livelong day for a trifling amount of pure honey when he can get glucose. The honey men see that there is plenty of glucose handy, and instead of one pound of pure honey they add the bees in putting ten pounds of glucose on the market."

"Human ingenuity has not devised a way for making and sealing the honey comb, or the bee would be dispensed with altogether. In handling the glucose the bees give it a honeyish flavor, and if you complain to the bee man that it is not as sweet and sticky as it should be he will tell you that it is the early crop and that the heavy rains make it thin."

"I know a man who keeps 50 hives of bees on the roof of his store in the city, and by hustling up plenty of glucose he gets enough 'honey' out of the buzzing slaves to do a wholesale business in honey. Why, his bees never saw a flower and would shy at a honeysuckle if they happened to come near one. He will not even let the poor things have a recess to get a drink of water, but keeps a pan of fresh water near the hives for them to drink."—New York Mail and Express.

An Immortal Oration.

The funeral oration of Pericles is pretty nearly what was actually spoken, or else it is the substance of the speech written out in the historian's own words, says James Ford Rhodes in The Atlantic. Its intensity of feeling and the fitting of it so well into the situation indicate it to be a living contemporaneous document, and at the same time it has that universal application which we note in so many speeches of Shakespeare.

A few years after our civil war a lawyer in a city of the middle west who had been selected to deliver the Memorial day oration came to a friend of his in despair because he could write nothing but the commonplaces about those who had died for the Union and for the freedom of a race which had been uttered many times before, and he asked for advice.

"Take the funeral oration of Pericles for a model," was the reply. "Use his words where they will fit and dress up the rest to suit our day."

The orator was surprised to find how much of the oration could be used bodily and how much, with adaptation, was germane to his subject.

Averted the Storm.

A certain congressman went home at a very early hour in the morning. He had made a night of it with some friends. He knew that his conduct would be considered reprehensible by his better half, and so, as he ascended the steps of his modest home, he racked his brain for some plan to avert the lady's wrath. As he entered the hall he saw an umbrella. Instantly it occurred to him that the umbrella might be his salvation.

He carried the umbrella up stairs. Seating himself on a chair in the corner of the bedroom, he raised the rain guard over his head, and then he coughed loudly. His wife awoke and saw in the dim gaslight her liege lord sitting solemnly under the raised umbrella.

"What are you doing?" she asked in natural surprise.

"It is 3 o'clock, my dear," said he, "and I am waiting for the storm."

The congressman's ready wit saved him from a Caudle lecture. He is worrying now, however, to find an equally effective act for the next time he stays out late.—Washington Post.

The Effect of His Face.

An amusing story is told at the expense of Winston Churchill, the author. An old man, seeing the picture of Churchill displayed in the window of a Baltimore bookseller, inquired of a bystander whom it represented.

"Winston Churchill," was the reply. "Where does he preach?"

Being told that Mr. Churchill was not a preacher, he asked: "Ain't he? What did you say his name is?"

"Winston Churchill. He writes novels."

"Does what?"

"Writes novels."

The man shook his head with a look of pity and declared: "Too bad! Too bad! He has a good face."

IN THE BABY'S EYES.

What is the dream in the baby's eyes
As he lies and blinks in a mute surprise,
With little wee hands that aimlessly go
Hither and thither and to and fro;
With little, wee feet that shall lead him? God
knows,

But a prayer from my heart like a benison goes,
Bundle of helplessness, yonder he lies.

What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

What does he wonder and what does he know?
That we have forgotten so long, long ago?
Bathed in the dawn light, what does he see?
That slow years have hidden from you and me,
Out of the yesterday seeth he yet?
The things that in living he soon shall forget,
All that is hidden beyond the blue skies.

What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

Speak to me, little one, ere you forget
What is the thought that is lingering there yet,
Where is the land where the yesterdays meet,
Waiting and waiting the mornings to greet?
You wee, funny bundle, who only will blink,
What do you wonder, and what do you think?
Bright as the noonlight asleep in the skies,
What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

NEVER ATE FOREIGN MEAT.

It Doesn't Pay to Be Too Sure Until One Knows All the Facts.

A certain Major Brownjones, who made it his boast that he never allowed American or colonial meat to be served at his table, recently visited an old comrade in Liverpool. One night at dinner a most delicious saddle of (apparently) Welsh mutton appeared, to which the major did ample justice.

"Ah," he observed, "I wish that my butcher in London would send me stuff like that, and yet he deals only in the best British meat."

"Well," said his friend, "as a matter of fact you have been eating New Zealand mutton. But it's only fair to say that I get it from a friend who is a large wholesale importer."

"By Jove, you don't say so!" exclaimed the guest. "I wish he'd tell me where I can get the like in town."

"We'll go and see him tomorrow," said the host. The visit was duly paid to the meat monger, who smiled when he heard the Londoner's eulogy and explanation.

"Tell me," he returned after listening to the epicure's remarks, "in what part of London you reside, and I dare say I can give you the address of a retail butcher who will supply you with exactly the same sort of mutton as that which you like so much." The major handed him his card.

"Ah," observed the importer, "there's the very man within two streets of your house. We supply him with all his meat. Here's his address," he added, handing a slip of paper to the seeker after succulent joints.

The major read, the major started, the major frowned, the major, truth to say, cried vengeance, and no wonder, for the address was that of his own butcher, who dealt only in home produce.—London Sketch.

The Bottle at Ship Launches.

Down to Charles II's time it was customary to name and baptize a ship after she was launched, sometimes a week or two after. The old Tudor method used for men-of-war was still in use. Pepys' "Diary" shows that. The ship was safely got afloat, after which some high personage went on board with a special silver "standing cup," or "flagon" of wine, out of which he drank, naming the ship and pouring a libation on the quarter deck. The cup was then generally given to the dockyard shipwright as a memento.

When did the present usage of naming and baptizing a ship before she is sent afloat come in? I trace the last explicit mention of the old method to 1664, when the Royal Katherine was launched (see Pepys). The first mention of smashing a bottle of wine on the bows of an English man-of-war that I have found is in a contemporary newspaper cutting of May, 1780, describing the christening of H. M. S. Magnanime at Deptford, but nothing is hinted that it was then a new custom.

Notes and Queries.

Clear and to the Point.

The following is taken from a hotel advertisement in the Calcutta Times: "Gentlemen who come in hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, &c., and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, and if not so they will not be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager of the place, and should they want to say anything they must order the manager for one, not any one else, and unless they bring not it to the notice of the manager they will be charged for the least things according to the hotel rate, and no fuss will be allowed afterward about it."

MINING CAMP TRICKS.

One Instance Where a Scheme Worked the Wrong Way.

"There is a great deal that is out of the ordinary in mining," said Samuel Mott of Boise City, Idaho, "although I think from personal experience it is probably more so in the relation than in the actual happening. In every mining camp I have known there have always been charges that those working a vein had gone through into the next claim in taking out the ore, and consequently were taking out what wasn't theirs. These claims it was always difficult to substantiate, for the reason that the offender, of course, would not allow the offended to enter his workings, and without a survey it would be impossible to make out a case. Every subterfuge and excuse possible was resorted to to get into a suspected mine."

"I remember one case in an apex of a vein suit, where the workings had been temporarily shut down and a man called 'Johnny Come Lately,' heavily armed, was on guard. The other side had tried again and again to get by 'Johnny,' but had always failed, when one man, who knew that 'Johnny' was an enthusiastic hunter, hired an acquaintance of his to stroll by with a gun over his arm and to engage 'Johnny' in a conversation about 'bar.' It worked to a charm, and while he was thus engrossed they managed to slip in and survey the mine."

"Then there was the case of the Last Chance against the Tyler. In this case the workings happened to run together, and the Last Chance people were working the same vein from underneath that the Tyler owners were working from on top. Knowing they would sooner or later break through, the Tyler people prepared smudge—that is, saturated cordwood that would give forth a tremendous smoke—which, they hoped, would drive the Last Chance people out of their mine. But when they finally set it off it went the other way and made the Tyler workings absolutely untenable. Indeed three of the miners were overcome and were rescued only with great difficulty."—New York Tribune.

WOULDN'T INTRODUCE HIM.

The Young Woman Rather Thought She Needed the Introduction.

A young man with a beetling brow and a nice new necktie entered a law office in one of the big down town office buildings and inquired for a member of the firm, a Mr. Younger, whose name he pronounced with strict regard for the rules of orthoepy.

"Is Mr. Younger in?" he asked of the young woman stenographer, with whom he seemed to be acquainted.

"You mean Mr. Youn-ger?" she replied, pronouncing the "g" hard.

"Can it be he pronounces it that way?" asked the caller, feigning surprise. "Of course it's his privilege to pronounce it as he chooses; there's no set rule for pronouncing names. But you know Y-o-u-n-g-e-r doesn't spell Youn-ger, but Young-er."

"No, I didn't know it," she answered as one who doesn't care. "But here he comes now. That's him going into his private office."

"Excuse me, but that's not him."

"No? Pray, who is it then?"

"It's he."

They stared at each other for ten seconds, and then the young man said:

"Will you introduce me to Mr. Younger?"

"No!" she retorted. "Since you seem to know so much more about him than I do, I think you'd better introduce me."

There was an ominous click in the rattle of the typewriter as the young man entered the private office and presented his card.—Chicago Chronicle.

Mint Mark Collections.

The mint mark collection is the latest thing in the line of numismatics. It is the fad of the specialist and has little attraction for the amateur. The object is to secure complete sets of perfect specimens of all the coins issued from the different mints.

A great many people are scarcely aware that there is any way to distinguish the coins issued from the different mints. They may not have noticed the small "S" or "O" beneath the eagle or under the wreath, and showing that the piece was coined at San Francisco or Carson City, or if it bears an "O" at New Orleans. And they may or may not know that if it has no mint mark it comes from the "mother mint" at Philadelphia. But the mint mark collector will see these little letters in an instant and is very apt to know just how many dimes, quarters, dollars or half dollars were turned out at any of the mints during any year since 1794.—Minneapolis Journal.

How He Obtained Quiet.

At one of the meetings during Mr. Moody's services in Kansas City hymn sheets were distributed by the ushers just previous to his address. He was feeling very tired, and speaking was a great exertion; so, fearing the noise that would result should the audience rustle them, he resolved to get rid of them. He called out, "Will everybody who has a hymn sheet hold it up?"

The sheets were held up all over the hall. Mr. Moody shouted, "Now shake them!"

Twelve thousand flimsy sheets of paper were shaken vigorously. They made an indescribably musical sound. There is nothing to compare it with. One can only say it was a vast rustle.

"That will do," called Mr. Moody at the top of his voice. The sound ceased. "All right," said Mr. Moody. "Now sit on those hymn sheets." The audience sat on them. Having taken this precaution against interruption, Mr. Moody began his sermon.

QUAY'S PAIRED VOTE SHOULD ESTOP HIM.

Simon So Asserted as to the Colonel's Attitude Toward Corbett—Denied Carter's Charge.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Mr. Simon (Or.) called up in the senate the resolution on the seating of former Senator Quay, and addressed the senate in answer to the speech of Mr. Carter delivered the day before, in the course of which the Montana senator adverted to the reasons which induced him to vote against Mr. Corbett, who was an appointee of the governor of Oregon. He said Mr. Carter had made the distinct charge that Mr. Corbett had corrupted the legislature and defeated the desire of the people of Oregon. He could not, he said, permit this "unjust and untrue" charge to go unchallenged. As a member of the Oregon legislature at that time he declared that Mr. Corbett was in no way responsible for the failure of the legislature to elect a senator or for the failure of the house to organize. The failure of the Oregon house to organize, he said, was due to former Senator Mitchell, and to him alone, and he denied the imputation of corruption on the part of Mr. Corbett. Mr. Simon then directed attention to the fact that Mr. Quay, as a member of the senate, was paired against Mr. Corbett and said on principles of justice Mr. Quay should be estopped by his paired vote against Mr. Corbett.

Mr. Carter replied to Mr. Simon's statement. He had not spoken with a view to making a personal assault upon Mr. Corbett.

"I assigned as a reason for voting against Mr. Corbett the belief I entertained then and which I still entertain, that the proceeding in the organization of the legislature was a revolutionary proceeding, to which Mr. Corbett was a party."

Mr. Carter then read a letter discussing the situation from George C. Brownell, chairman of the joint assembly of the state of Oregon. He followed this letter with the assertion that Mr. Corbett and the governor of the state were in the combination not only to defeat Mitchell, but to elect Corbett. The latter's entire effort, he said, was to prevent the organization of the legislature in order that he might secure the appointment.

In reply, Mr. Simon said he was induced to believe that Mr. Carter's statement were somewhat warped and exaggerated by the peculiar atmosphere of Montana politics, in which, if what had been heard about the capital during the past few weeks approximated the truth, it was the general practice to use money in big figures. "In fact," said he, "it has been said that one gentleman in Montana, the candidate for an honorable office, had separated himself from about $800,000."

He did not attempt to assert the truth of the case, but he felt that Mr. Carter might have obtained his ideas about the corrupt use of money nearer home than was the state of Oregon.

TWO CENTS

A WALL OF DEATH

Blocks Entrance to Red Ash Mine,
West Virginia.

DEAD AND DYING BEHIND.

At Least Ten Bodies Were Taken Out by
Rescuers.

PROBABLY 40 YET ENTOMBED.

Altogether the Victims May Number 50
—Had the Explosion Occurred an Hour
Later, More Men Would Have Been in
the Mine and the Number of Victims
Greater—Thirty-seven of Those Dead
or Still In the Mine—Some Were Too
Mutilated for Identification—The General Belief Is That the Explosion Was Caused by Dust Being Ignited From
Lamps—Sad Scenes at the Mine Mouth.

FIRE CREEK, W. Va., March 7.—The first reports of the explosion at Red Ash mine were greatly exaggerated. The latest reports since are that there were only 50 miners entombed instead of 125. Only ten bodies have been taken out so far instead of 37, as previously reported, but it is believed that all of the 40 that are still in the mine will never be found alive. The explosion happened as the men were going into the mine in groups, and in couples in some instances, and they were strung along in this manner for over a mile, so that the work of rescue will require a long time. There were more men near the entrance who escaped than were lost.

The Red Ash mine is a large drift, and the explosion occurred near the entrance, which was thus closed by the falling slate, entombing a large number of miners.

The scene of the disaster is between this place and Thurmond, on the south branch of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway, and every assistance possible was rendered by the railway company and by the adjoining mining towns. Relief parties from great distances arrived as soon as possible. State Mine Inspector Pinckney, with a corps of experts and many workmen, has been on the ground, rendering all assistance possible and devoting his attention more toward relief than to an official investigation as to the cause of the disaster.

J. Fred Ellinger, of Staunton, Va., the principal owner of the mines, spared no effort in the work of rescue and relief, and his manager, Ferdinand Howell, had all the men available at work in trying to clear away the debris and rescue the entombed men. The managers and bosses of all the mines in this district came to the scene as soon as possible and joined in the work of rescue. It is impossible to describe the amount of work done by this concentrated army of men, but they were greatly impeded because of the extent of the enormous blockade at the entrance to the drift. The large heavy side tires of the entrance were blown out to some distance, together with a lot of heavy timbers. Even mules were blown out some distance.

The force of such an explosion caused an immediate falling of the slate and other debris, so that the entrance was filled up for a great distance and the difficulties in digging through it caused delay in the work of rescue. As many men as could work at one time were digging away with all their might and were relieved in short relays by other men so as to expedite the work of rescuing as many as possible.

At the first successful strike of the workers 10 bodies were recovered. Seven of them were already dead and the other three were dying. As the miners were located at different places in the drift, and the explosion caused the falling slate to blockade the rooms in different parts of the mine, the work of rescue met with one great obstruction after another. At the mouth of the mine the scene was beyond description, the wives and children and the neighbors of those who were known to be entombed were there in full force, and their anxiety and distress were most intense. While they were all seeking to help those who were rescued and to get the mine reopened, yet these bereaved people were for the most part in the way of the rescuers and had to be held back from the entrance.

The mine is one of the largest in West Virginia and was very heavily timbered in the different drifts. It was for this reason feared that those who had not been killed by falling debris at the time of the explosion would be pinioned by these connecting timbers and suffer death from suffocation. Air was forced into the mine by engines on the surface, which were kept working after the explosion, but it was found that air could be pumped into the drift for only a short distance, as the coal, stone and earth shut off all possibility of reaching the interior. The pumps and all other machinery in the mine were demolished, so that everything had to be done through temporary arrangements on the surface.

After the men got under headway in the work of rescue, they reached the first party in less than an hour, but they met greater difficulties after that time. It was then that telegrams were sent to Montgomery, Charleston and other places for physicians, nurses and caskets, but during the greater part of the day there was use only for the caskets.

The estimates on the number in the mines when the explosion occurred are based on the number who entered at 7 o'clock. The manager stated that by 8 o'clock or 8:30 a. m. there would have been twice as many men in the mines.

The population of this mining village is only 500. All are miners, and the calamity will reach almost every little home in the town. Those working on the rescue relays said that the scene became more terrible as they got further into the mine. The men become almost faint of heart when they stuck a place filled with dead bodies.

Most of the bodies that cannot be identified or recognized have been placed in the large blacksmith shop of the Red Ash Coal company, and that place presents the appearance of a horrible morgue. Although the bodies are mangled beyond recognition, yet they are surrounded by those who are in distress and hunting their lost friends.

The general belief is that the explosion occurred by contact with dust when the miners entered with their lights and that it was not due to fire damp, as has been currently reported all day. Nearly all the men employed in the mine were white, only about one-tenth being colored, and most of the men were married and had families in the little cottages near the tipple of the great mine.

Some of the bodies were so mangled as to beyond recognition. Among the dead and those known to have gone into the mine were these:

B. B. Long, fire boss.
Eret Long, workman.

UPRISING OF DUTCH

Joined by Others in Prieska and Kenhardt Districts.

PIET WOOLMAN IS THE LEADER.

Joubert Reported in Command of Boers
Near Osfontein—Supplies Being Pushed
Forward to Roberts—Both Armies Preparing for a Struggle.

CAPE TOWN, March 7.—Nearly the whole of the Dutch population of the Prieski and Kenhardt districts are in rebellion. Many of the Dutch from neighboring districts are reported to have joined them, notably Piet Woolman, who will lead the rebels.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch to The Standard from Osfontein, dated Sunday, March 4, contained the following:

"General Joubert is reported to be in supreme command of the Boer forces here."

LONDON, March 7.—Mr. Roberts still pauses in the neighborhood of Osfontein while stores, remounts and fresh troops stream toward him from the Cape. The British position also continues to improve in the minor spheres of the campaign. Natal is clear of Boers and Cape Colony is nearly so.

The Boers seemingly are pursuing the course commanded by the strategists, and are concentrating to resist the British main army. Various messages from correspondents with Lord Roberts report that the enemy are increasing continually on his front.

ATTACK ON CECIL RHODES.

London Paper Said He Would Some Time
Defy England.

LONDON, March 7.—The Morning Leader contains the following: "Of one thing we may be certain, Cecil Rhodes, who knows South Africa, has made up his mind that the annexation of the republics will not bring the lasting peace which our imperialists prophesy. Mr. Rhodes is so sure that this will not happen that he is prepared to set to work at once on the fortifications of Kimberley."

"We incline to think that Mr. Rhodes is preparing for a possible armed conflict with the imperial faction which he fought at the polls and in parliament until 1895. He is preparing to resist any attempt on their part to interfere in South African affairs either in the Dutch elector, which vote is already threatened, or of the Kaffir laborer, who seems doomed to virtual slavery."

"That is not, indeed, an extravagant hypothesis. Rhodes has consistently maintained a policy of Africa for the Afrikaner, and on his lips the latter word is synonymous with financiers. He will be loyal to the English flag just so long as it continues to be a valuable commercial asset."

BRITISH OCCUPIED STORMBERG.

General Buller Reported Natal Practically Clear of Boers.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch from Lord Roberts contained the following:

"OSFONTEIN, March 6.—General Gatacre occupied Stormberg yesterday. The lines of railway north and west will now be repaired. General Clements is at Joubert's siding station, beyond Colesberg. The Duke of Marlborough, with the Oxford company of the Imperial Yeomanry, has left Cape Town for Naaupoort.

"General Buller reports Natal now practically clear of the enemy and that he cannot hear of any formed body of them anywhere. The Boers left some ambulances full of their sick, from which the mules had been taken for transport service."

GRANTED HAWAII'S REQUEST.

Cabinet Decides to Grant Money Requested to Fight the Plague.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—At the cabinet meeting, the recommendation of the Hawaiian council that they be authorized to expend $300,000 in the suppression of the bubonic plague and in the relief of distressed natives was formally approved. Some doubt was expressed as to the authority of the Hawaiian council to make this expenditure, but the opinion was unanimous that the gravity of the situation justified that course, and the necessary directions will be forwarded at once.

Porto Rico postal affairs were also considered. A large part of the time of the meeting was taken up with a discussion on the Porto Rico tariff bill.

EIGHT AMERICANS KILLED.

Among Those Dead, Reported by General
Otis, Was Lieutenant Kochler.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—General Otis cabled the war department a list of casualties in the Philippines, comprising eight killed and twenty-two wounded. Among those killed was First Lieutenant Edgar F. Koehler, Ninth infantry, who met his death at Tinuba, March 4. He was a native of Illinois.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS MET.

Feasibility of Extending the Order to Foreign Lands Doubted.

NEW HAVEN, March 7.—The annual meeting of the national council, Knights of Columbus, was held in this city.

Several important matters were scheduled for consideration, the most important being the report of a special committee appointed two years ago on the assessment rate in comparison with the mortuary tables of insurance companies and fraternal orders, and petitions from various countries in South America and islands in the West Indies, asking that the order be extended to those territories. Considerable doubt was expressed as to the feasibility of extending the order into foreign lands.

TYPHOID PATIENTS DRIVEN OUT.

Fire at Turtle Creek, Pa., May Have Had Bad Effect on Sick Persons.

PITTSBURG, March 7.—Fire destroyed three dwellings at Turtle Creek, and the three families that occupied the buildings were rendered homeless. One of the houses was occupied by Samuel Wilkinson and his family, five members of which were lying in sickbeds at the time of the fire. Mrs. Wilkinson and four of the children were ill with typhoid fever, and it is feared that the excitement and exposure which followed the burning of their home may have a bad effect on some of the patients.

MONEY GIVEN TO MRS. LAWTON.

Also Letters, Many of Which Contained Tributes to Her Husband's Memory.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—General Corbin turned over to Mrs. Lawton, widow of the late Major General Lawton, the fund subscribed by the people of the country. It amounted to $98,432.07.

In addition to the money, the committee also turned over to Mrs. Lawton all the letters received from subscribers to the fund, many of which contain beautiful tributes to the memory of her lamented husband.

For a Cable to Manila.

ALFRED HARMER DEAD

"Father of the House" Died at Germantown, Pa.

HAD BEEN ILL SINCE NOVEMBER.

Attended Opening of the House, but Before Christmas Recess He Had to Return Home Kidney Trouble Attributed to Be the Cause of His Death.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Congressman Alfred C. Harmer, of the Fifth Pennsylvania district, the "Father of the House," died at his home in Germantown, a suburb of this city. Mr. Harmer had been ill since last November, when he was stricken with a severe attack of kidney trouble.

He recovered sufficiently to attend the opening of congress in December, but before the Christmas recess he returned to Philadelphia and has since that time been confined to his bed.

A few days ago he suffered a relapse and steadily failed until last evening, when he died, surrounded by his wife, three sons and two daughters.

CREIN OFFERS TO QUIT.

That Is If Anything Wrong With His Army Record Can Be Found.
Wrote to Davis.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The resolution adopted by the senate calling for a complete record of the court-martial which tried Adjutant General Corbin when lieutenant-colonel of the Fourteenth colored infantry, on a charge of cowardice, and other information as to his military career, called for a mass of papers that will require a week's time to copy according to the estimates of the war department.

General Corbin, in anticipation of the reply, addressed to Senator Davis, of Minnesota, an appeal for an immediate examination of his soldierly record from the day he entered the service of the United States as a 19-year-old boy 48 years ago up to the present time. Moreover, he authorizes the senator to present his (Corbin's) resignation to the president if the search reveals a suggestion of unworthiness. The letter includes the findings of the court-martial which most honorably acquitted Lieutenant-Colonel Corbin of the charge, General Grant's letter conferring upon him two brevets for gallant services at the time he was charged with cowardice, and, finally, a letter from the colonel of the regiment who preferred the charge, praising his work in the campaign.

For the past week special services have been held at the First United Presbyterian church, Dr. J. C. Taggart pastor, preparatory to communion services next Sunday. The meetings have been addressed by Rev. E. O. Little, a speaker of rare power, and the interest has increased with each meeting. There was a very good attendance last night and a most successful service was held. The meetings will be continued each night this week, Rev. Little being present until Friday evening.

LIVE ALLIGATORS.

L. M. Thomas Sent Four of Them to Some of His Friends In This City.

Four live alligators arrived in the city yesterday from Jacksonville, Fla. They were sent here by Mr. L. M. Thomas as a present to some friends and are in very good condition and as lively as can be. The alligators were named by Mr. Thomas before they were started, and are called Mr. and Mrs. Oom Paul and Mr. and Mrs. Aguinaldo. It is thought the latter two will die first.

Songaline

TRADE MARK

"In the fall of 1891 I had a severe attack of muscular rheumatism which settled in my right arm and shoulder. Songaline was highly recommended to me and I determined to give it a thorough trial. I took six or eight teaspoonful doses daily, diluted in water, with plenty of hot water and inside of two days was relieved to such an extent that the pain had almost entirely left me. By continuing the treatment a short time longer I was thoroughly cured and I am gratified to state that there has been no recurrence of the trouble. Since then I have frequently recommended Songaline to friends suffering from rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, etc. and I have yet to hear of a single instance where it failed to cure the disease."

WINE OF CARDUI

Woman Knows Woman.

ZURICH, KAN., Jan. 31.

I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.

MRS. V. M. BOISVERT.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it?

CITIZEN AND SOLDIER

And Eminently Fitted and Qualified For the Berth to Which He Aspires.

The announcement of C. C. Baker as a candidate for congress in the Eighteenth district will be found in another column. He is known all over this county. He has been a resident of Columbiana county for 37 years. This would entitle him to be considered a home candidate. Since leaving here, and for the past 10 years, he has been a resident of Alliance, not more than a stone's throw from Columbiana county. His parents moved to Unity township when he was 10 years old, where he lived until the outbreak of the civil war.

At the age of 18 he enlisted as a private in Company C, Sixth Ohio cavalry, and served three and one half years. After the war he moved to Fairfield township where he lived until his election as county auditor in 1880. He served two terms as county auditor. No county official ever retired from office enjoying to a higher degree the respect, confidence and good will of the people. He was kind, courteous and considerate, and in addition possessed unusual business qualifications. It was a pleasure to transact business in the auditor's office. Mr. Baker is a successful business man and is thoroughly informed as to the wants of his district. He will be an unusually strong candidate and will make a model representative.

He will look after the interests of his constituents in a thoroughly business-like manner.

HE DIED HAPPY.

Little Charlie Quayle Was Content, With No Fears as to the Future.

In yesterday's edition of the News Review was given an account of the death of a boy by the name of Charlie Quayle, who was bitten by a pet dog, supposed to be mad. The little fellow had no fear of death, having full and complete trust and perfect faith in the Master's mercy. He summoned strong men to his bedside and told them of certain things connected with their lives, We lead; let those who can, follow features which they fondly hoped had not seen the light of day or gained publicity, and in a kindly, loving manner, obtained the promise from them that the evil things in their lives should cease to exist. Afterwards, Charlie smilingly told a minister of the Gospel respecting the above conversation, and rejoiced in the fact that even little boy could do much good, assuring the minister that he held no fear of what was called death. It was wonderful testimony. "And a little child shall lead them."

TAYLER'S PLAN.

Columbiana Congressman Has a Scheme for Disposing of Contests.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—[Special]—Congressman R. W. Tayler, who was chairman of the select committee which had charge of the Brigham H. Roberts case, and who is now chairman of the house elections committee No. 1, has a new plan for the hearing and disposition of contested election cases. He proposes that the English system be patterned after by this government; that is, that a commission of three members, none of whom shall be members of congress, be selected, who shall perform the work now done by the elections committee. The commission should be non-partisan and sit as a court, and, if such a thing were possible, should be given final jurisdiction in all the cases which come before it for hearing. Mr. Tayler says he may introduce a bill during the present session embodying this idea.

NOT ENOUGH.

There Is Too Much Work For the Amount of Money Paid the Township Trustees.

The township trustees of this city are very much in favor of the bill introduced in the legislature by a representative from Richland county increasing the salaries of the trustees. The trustees now get $150 per year, and they say it is not enough for the amount of work they have to do. One of the local trustees also thinks it would be a good plan to do away with the three board idea and let one man attend to the work and pay him a good salary. He thinks the work could be done a great deal better this way.

HIGHLY ENDORSED.

What the Republican Paper at the State Capital Says of Mr. Baker.

Ex State Senator Silas J. Williams, of Alliance, who recently announced his candidacy for the Republican congressional nomination in the Eighteenth district, in a card published last night, states that, after making a careful canvass of the field, he has decided that he is not the most available man to unite the opposition to Congressman Tayler for the fourth term, and withdraws from the race in favor of Hon. Charles C. Baker, of Alliance, who, it is announced, has consented to become a candidate. Mr. Baker is very popular in Columbiana county, where he served two terms as auditor, and it is claimed he will secure a majority of the delegates in Tayler's own bailiwick, to say nothing of his strength in Stark and Mahoning, where he is looked upon as a sure winner.—Ohio State Journal.

NEW STATE BOARD.

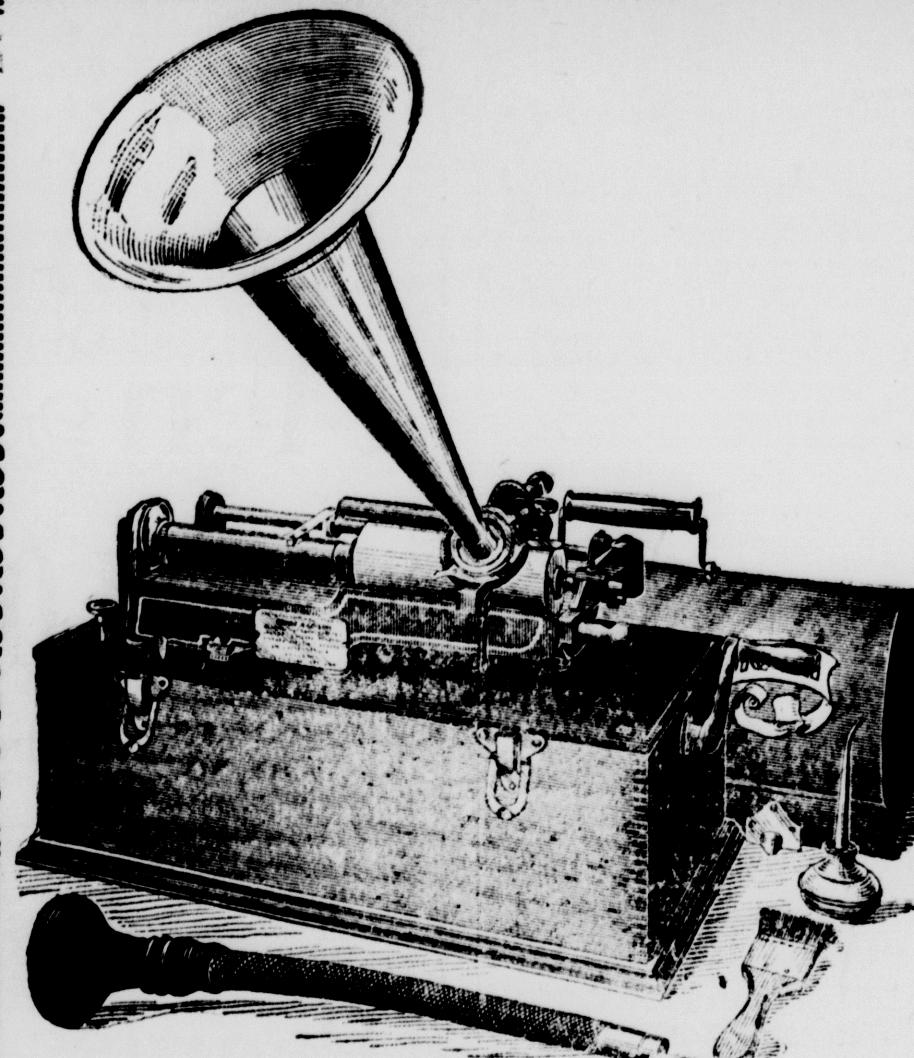

Those who have been asking council to create the office of plumbing inspector will be interested to learn that a bill has been introduced in the state legislature providing for the creation of a state board of examiners and licensers for plumbers, consisting of five members, three of whom must be master plumbers, to examine all plumbers as to their qualifications for pursuing that avocation.

PENSIONS FOR TEACHERS.

The bill now before the legislature for the pensioning of school teachers is meeting with vigorous opposition from the teachers themselves. They claim that the bill will work an injustice in assessing the younger teachers to create a pension fund that the great majority of them will not remain long enough in the profession to enjoy. They have great hopes that all will get married before they have been teaching long enough to draw a pension.

INTERESTING TO DRUGGISTS.

The druggists of the state are interested in a bill now before the legislature which seeks to regulate the sale of patent medicines by prohibiting druggists from recommending any preparation which they have for sale. If the bill becomes a law the druggists say

The doctors favor the bill and the druggists naturally are opposing it.

BE A REPUBLICAN.

Yes, if you profess to be a Republican, carry your profession and principle out to the letter. If you believe that the Republican party best represents the financial, commercial and business interests of the nation, then stand by your party and render it all the assistance which lies in your power. This paper is a Republican paper and flies the flag of the party at its head, and will do battle in the cause of true Republicanism to the full extent of its ability. We shall battle along the line of clean journalism. Our Democratic neighbors have rights that we are bound to respect, and no scurrilous or malicious attacks shall be made upon them in these columns. We have Democratic friends whom we honor and respect, good citizens. We differ with them politically, and feel sorry that they are so blinded to their material interests as to vote as they do when they possess the power to be in the ranks of our Grand Old Party. All men of true courage despise a coward, a trickster and a dissembler, and have no use for the poor creatures who dare not fly the flag of any party, but who simply exist as bloodsuckers, aiming to secure the "FAT" of political life from all parties, holding out a pleading hand and crying "give! give! give!!!" Who PRAY "good Lord-good devil" and PREY on everything and everybody.

A FIGHT.

E Schriver and Patrick Maloney Had a Dispute Over a Game of Cards.

Constable Powell yesterday afternoon arrested E. Schriver upon a complaint made by Patrick Maloney. Maloney claimed that he was playing cards in the White Cloud saloon and a dispute arose over the game, when Schriver struck him. He bore the marks of the encounter on his face and when Schriver was taken before Squire Rose he was fined $14.60. When Powell entered the saloon to arrest Schriver he found four men seated around the table and cards on the table. There will probably be another action entered, as there is an ordinance prohibiting card playing in saloons.

VACANCIES.

The Democrats Have Two Persons Who Have No Desire for Office.

The Democrats already have two vacancies on their ticket to fill, as Robert Hill declines to be a candidate for the position of justice of the peace and John Schmelzenbach, who was nominated for the board of education, is a Prohibitionist, and will not be a Democratic candidate. P. J. McKeone's name will not be taken from the ticket until he notifies the secretary, although Mr. McKeone has publicly stated that he is a Republican.

ROBERTS REPORTS BOERS IN RETREAT.

Closely Pursued by Advancing British Troops.

NOT ENGAGEMENT THIS MORNING

Boers, Unable to Meet Roberts' Army, Retreated, With a Brigade of British Hard on Their Rear--Joubert Is Waiting a Chance.

LONDON, March 7.—[Special]—The war department made public this afternoon a dispatch just received from Lord Roberts, in which the field marshal states that he advanced this morning and that the enemy is in full retreat, closely followed by his troops.

Newspaper dispatches received late this afternoon state that Roberts' army, beyond a short brisk engagement met with little resistance, the overpowering force under the British commander rendering any attempt to make a stand futile. The Boers have now fallen back out of touch with Roberts' force, a detachment of which is endeavoring to hang on to the retreating burghers, so that Roberts may be kept fully posted upon their movements. Meanwhile the British are steadily advancing into the Free state. Joubert and his army are supposed to be in the northeast awaiting a favorable opportunity to attack the invaders.

BOYS STOLE BRASSES

From Engine Rooms of Four Potteries.

THEY WERE CAUGHT IN THE ACT

Monday Evening by Engineer McShane, of the Thompson Pottery, as They Were Coming From the Plant With a Sack Full.

To James McShane, chief engineer at the Thompson pottery, belongs the credit of putting a stop to the stealing of brasses from the engines of several potteries about the city. For some time brass valves, bearings and slides have been missed from the engines when the engineers would go to their work in the morning, but who took the brass was not discovered until Monday night.

McShane was returning to the pottery Monday evening when he noticed several boys coming from the building with a bag. It was so heavy the boys could not make much headway, and McShane, thinking something wrong, stopped the boys and looking into the bag found a lot of brass that had been taken from the engine room a short time before. He took their names and made a report to the office but no arrests have yet been made.

Mr. George Thompson, when seen today, said: "It is estimated that we have had at least $150 worth of brass taken from our engine room, but a portion of this has been recovered. The boys took the brass from our factory and sold it to a junk dealer in Center alley. We have decided not to make any prosecutions unless we find that we cannot recover all that has been taken. The dealers who received the brass have said they would return all."

It is stated that brass has been taken from the engines at the Cartwright, Laughlin No 1 and Knowles, Taylor & Knowles potteries, and it is thought the same crowd of boys were implicated in each instance.

Final Disposition of Financial Bill Evidently Awaited by Bull Contingent. Features of Market.

NEW YORK, March 7.—On the Stock Exchange, Tuesday, very earnest efforts were made to weaken Sugar, but the utmost that could be achieved was a three point decline, offerings of the stock being comparatively light. Third Avenue was strong, rising an extreme $\frac{1}{2}$ and imparting sympathetic strength to the other local traction stocks. The most notable examples of the bear tactics were furnished by the international paper stocks, the con mon falling $\frac{1}{2}$ and rallying $\frac{1}{4}$, and the preferred falling $\frac{1}{2}$ and rallying $\frac{1}{4}$; Pressed Steel Car, which dropped $\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied $\frac{1}{2}$; American Hoop, which fell $\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied $\frac{1}{4}$; Standard Rope and its bond issues, which were raided down from $\frac{1}{2}$ to 8 points, with rallies extending from 1 to nearly 4 points, and People's Gas, which fell $\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied $\frac{1}{2}$.

Practically all the iron and steel stocks were down from 1 to 2 points, and many recovered a good portion of the loss and there were other less striking examples all through the list of specialties. In the railroad list St. Paul, Burlington and Baltimore and Ohio showed an extreme decline of a point or over, but the net changes in the railroads are small throughout. It is evident that the final disposition of the financial bill by congress is awaited by the bull contingent, who are generally confident that the provisions for additional bank circulation will be enacted into law and will result in a notable expansion of the currency.

The large buying of government bonds by national banks all over the country, and the expert estimates which are current of the profit offered on circulation by the new provisions, are the grounds of this confidence. Meantime the money market is working constantly closer, and the favorable factors in the outlook are ignored, in the fear that the available supply of money will not bridge the interval until the expected relief.

The bond market was dull and irregular. Total sales, par value, \$1,335,000. United States old 4's and 5's advanced $\frac{1}{2}$ and the 3's $\frac{1}{4}$ in the bid price.

The Chicago Grain Market.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The prediction of a cold wave, a higher spot market at Liverpool, firmness in northwestern markets and talk of export business were supports in a fairly active wheat market Tuesday. May closing $\frac{1}{2}$ @ $\frac{1}{2}$ over Monday. May corn closed $\frac{1}{2}$ c and May oats $\frac{1}{2}$ up. Provisions were dull, but closed a trifle improved.

Fool the Bees and the People.

"People buy come honey," said a man from the country, "believing that the fact that it is sealed by the honest little bee precludes the possibility of fraud. The fact is that the bees of many professional 'honey' raisers do nothing the livelong summer but pack glucose into their hives from an open barrel that is left standing close by. The bee will not search fragrant flowers the livelong day for a trifling amount of pure honey when he can get glucose. The honey men see that there is plenty of glucose handy, and instead of one pound of pure honey they aid the bees in putting ten pounds of glucose on the market.

"Human ingenuity has not devised a way for making and sealing the honey comb, or the bee would be dispensed with altogether. In handling the glucose the bees give it a honeyish flavor, and if you complain to the bee man that it is not as sweet and sticky as it should be he will tell you that it is the early crop and that the heavy rains make it thin.

"I know a man who keeps 50 hives of bees on the roof of his store in the city, and by hustling up plenty of glucose he gets enough 'honey' out of the buzzing slaves to do a wholesale business in honey. Why, his bees never saw a flower and would shy at a honeysuckle if they happened to come near one. He will not even let the poor things have a recess to get a drink of water, but keeps a pan of fresh water near the hives for them to drink."

An Immortal Oration.

The funeral oration of Pericles is pretty nearly what was actually spoken, or else it is the substance of the speech written out in the historian's own words, says James Ford Rhodes in The Atlantic. Its intensity of feeling and the fitting of it so well into the situation indicate it to be a living contemporaneous document, and at the same time it has that universal application which we note in so many speeches of Shakespeare.

A few years after our civil war a lawyer in a city of the middle west who had been selected to deliver the Memorial day oration came to a friend of his in despair because he could write nothing but the commonplaces about those who had died for the Union and for the freedom of a race which had been uttered many times before, and he asked for advice.

"Take the funeral oration of Pericles for a model," was the reply. "Use his words where they will fit and dress up the rest to suit our day."

The orator was surprised to find how much of the oration could be used bodily and how much, with adaptation, was germane to his subject.

Averted the Storm.

A certain congressman went home at a very early hour in the morning. He had made a night of it with some friends. He knew that his conduct would be considered reprehensible by his better half, and so, as he ascended the steps of his modest home, he racked his brain for some plan to avert the lady's wrath. As he entered the hall he saw an umbrella. Instantly it occurred to him that the umbrella might be his salvation.

He carried the umbrella up stairs. Seating himself on a chair in the corner of the bedroom, he raised the rain guard over his head, and then he coughed loudly. His wife awoke and saw in the dim gaslight her liege lord sitting solemnly under the raised umbrella.

"What are you doing?" she asked in natural surprise.

"It is 3 o'clock, my dear," said he, "and I am waiting for the storm."

The congressman's ready wit saved him from a Caudle lecture. He is worrying now, however, to find an equally effective act for the next time he stays out late.—Washington Post.

The Effect of His Face.

An amusing story is told at the expense of Winston Churchill, the author. An old man, seeing the picture of Churchill displayed in the window of a Baltimore bookseller, inquired of a bystander whom it represented.

"Winston Churchill," was the reply.

"Where does he preach?"

Being told that Mr. Churchill was not a preacher, he asked: "Ain't be? What did you say his name is?"

"Winston Churchill. He writes novels."

"Does what?"

"Writes novels."

The man shook his head with a look of pity and declared: "Too bad! Too bad! He has a good face."

IN THE BABY'S EYES.

What is the dream in the baby's eyes
As he lies and blinks in a mute surprise,
With little wee hands that aimlessly go
Hither and thither and to and fro;
With little, wee feet that shall lead him? God
knows,

But a prayer from my heart like a benison goes,
Bundle of helplessness, yonder he lies.

What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

What does he wonder and what does he know?

That we have forgotten so long, long ago?

Bathed in the dawn light, what does he see?

That slow hours have hidden from you and me?

Out of the yesterday seeth he yet?

The things that in living he soon shall forget,

All that is hidden beyond the blue skies.

What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

Speak to me, little one, ere you forget

What is the thought that is lingering there yet?

Where is the land where the yesterdays meet,

Waiting and waiting the mornows to greet?

You wee, funny bundle, who only will blink,

What do you wonder, and what do you think?

Bright as the moonlight asleep in the skies,

What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

MINING CAMP TRICKS.

One Instance Where a Scheme Worked the Wrong Way.

"There is a great deal that is out of the ordinary in mining," said Samuel Mott of Boise City, Ida., "although I think from personal experience it is probably more so in the relation than in the actual happening. In every mining camp I have known there have always been charges that those working a vein had gone through into the next claim in taking out the ore, and consequently were taking out what wasn't theirs. These claims it was always difficult to substantiate, for the reason that the offender, of course, would not allow the offended to enter his workings, and without a survey it would be impossible to make out a case. Every subterfuge and excuse possible was resorted to get into a suspected mine.

"I remember one case in an apex of a vein suit, where the workings had been temporarily shut down and a man called 'Johnny Come Lately,' heavily armed, was on guard. The other side had tried again and again to get by 'Johnny,' but had always failed; when one man, who knew that 'Johnny' was an enthusiastic hunter, hired an acquaintance of his to stroll by with a gun over his arm and to engage 'Johnny' in a conversation about 'bar.' It worked to a charm, and while he was thus engrossed they managed to slip in and survey the mine.

"Then there was the case of the Last Chance against the Tyler. In this case the workings happened to run together, and the Last Chance people were working the same vein from underneath that the Tyler owners were working from on top. Knowing they would sooner or later break through, the Tyler people prepared smudge—that is, saturated cordwood that would give forth a tremendous smoke—which, they hoped, would drive the Last Chance people out of their mine. But when they finally set it off it went the other way and made the Tyler workings absolutely untenable. Indeed three of the miners were overcome and were rescued only with great difficulty."—New York Tribune.

WOULDN'T INTRODUCE HIM.

The Young Woman Rather Thought She Needed the Introduction.

A young man with a beetling brow and a nice new necktie entered a law office in one of the big down town office buildings and inquired for a member of the firm, a Mr. Younger, whose name he pronounced with strict regard for the rules of orthoepy.

"Is Mr. Younger in?" he asked of the young woman stenographer, with whom he seemed to be acquainted.

"You mean Mr. Youn-ger?" she replied, pronouncing the "g" hard.

"Can it be he pronounces it that way?" asked the caller, feigning surprise. "Of course it's his privilege to pronounce it as he chooses; there's no set rule for pronouncing names. But you know Y-o-u-n-g-e-r doesn't spell Youn-ger, but Young-er."

"No, I didn't know it," she answered as one who doesn't care. "But here he comes now. That's him going into his private office."

"Excuse me, but that's not him."

"No? Pray, who is it then?"

"It's he."

They stared at each other for ten seconds, and then the young man said:

"Will you introduce me to Mr. Younger?"

"No!" she retorted. "Since you seem to know so much more about him than I do, I think you'd better introduce me."

There was an ominous click in the rattle of the typewriter as the young man entered the private office and presented his card.—Chicago Chronicle.

Mint Mark Collections.

The mint mark collection is the latest thing in the line of numismatics. It is the fad of the specialist and has little attraction for the amateur. The object is to secure complete sets of perfect specimens of all the coins issued from the different mints.

A great many people are scarcely aware that there is any way to distinguish the coins issued from the different mints. They may not have noticed the small "S" or "CC" beneath the eagle or under the wreath, and showing that the piece was coined at San Francisco or Carson City, or if it bears an "O" at New Orleans. And they may or may not know that if it has no mint mark it comes from the "mother mint" at Philadelphia. But the mint mark collector will see these little letters in an instant and is very apt to know just how many dimes, quarters, dollars or half dollars were turned out at any of the mints during any year since 1794.—Minneapolis Journal.

How He Obtained Quiet.

At one of the meetings during Mr. Moody's services in Kansas City hymn sheets were distributed by the ushers just previous to his address. He was feeling very tired, and speaking was a great exertion; so, fearing the noise that would result should the audience rustle them, he resolved to get rid of them. He called out, "Will everybody who has a hymn sheet hold it up?"

The sheets were held up all over the hall. Mr. Moody shouted, "Now shake them!"

Twelve thousand flimsy sheets of paper were shaken vigorously. They made an indescribably musical sound. There is nothing to compare it with. One can only say it was a vast rustle.

"That will do," called Mr. Moody at the top of his voice. The sound ceased. "All right," said Mr. Moody. "Now sit on those hymn sheets." The audience sat on them. Having taken this precaution against interruption, Mr. Moody began his sermon.

UNION LABELS

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

UNION PAPERS.

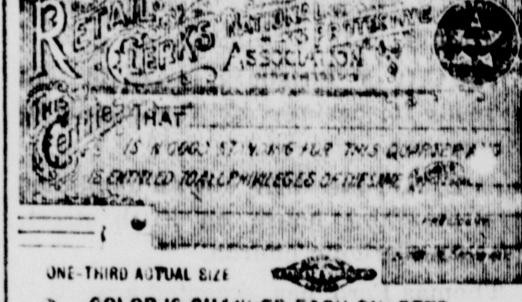

All Union papers of East Liverpool are known to the various craft and unions of the city by the printing of the above Union Labels at the head of their columns.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card.

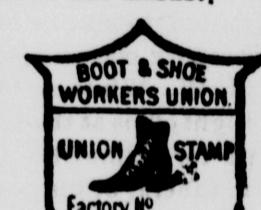

Ask for it when making your purchases.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

The Boot and Shoe Workers' Union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeyman Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

QUAY'S PAIRED VOTE SHOULD ESTOP HIM.

Simon So Asserted as to the Colonel's Attitude Toward Corbet—Denied Carter's Charge.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Mr. Simon (Or.) called up in the senate the resolution on the seating of former Senator Quay, and addressed the senate in answer to the speech of Mr. Carter delivered the day before, in the course of which the Montana senator adverted to the reasons which induced him to vote against Mr. Corbett, who was an appointee of the governor of Oregon. He said Mr. Carter had made the distinct charge that Mr. Corbett had corrupted the legislature and defeated the desire of the people of Oregon. He could not, he said, permit this "unjust and untrue" charge to go unchallenged. As a member of the Oregon legislature at that time, he declared that Mr. Corbett was in no way responsible for the failure of the legislature to elect a senator or for the failure of the house to organize. The failure of the Oregon house to organize, he said, was due to former Senator Mitchell, and to him alone, and he denied the imputation of corruption on the part of Mr. Corbett. Mr. Simon then directed attention to the fact that Mr. Quay, as a member of the senate, was paired against Mr. Corbett and said on principles of justice Mr. Quay should be estopped by his paired vote against Mr. Corbett.

Mr. Carter replied to Mr. Simon's statement. He had not spoken with a view to making a personal assault upon Mr. Corbett.

"I assigned as a reason for voting against Mr. Corbett the belief I entertained then and which I still entertain, that the proceeding in the organization of the legislature was a revolutionary proceeding, to which Mr. Corbett was a party."

Mr. Carter then had read a letter discussing the situation from George C. Brownell, chairman of the joint assembly of the state of Oregon. He followed this letter with the assertion that Mr. Corbett and the governor of the state were in the combination not only to defeat Mitchell, but to elect Corbett. The latter's entire effort, he said, was to prevent the organization of the legislature in order that he might secure the appointment.

In reply, Mr. Simon said he was induced to believe that Mr. Carter's statement were somewhat warped and exaggerated by the peculiar atmosphere of Montana politics, in which, if what had been heard about the capital during the past few weeks approximated the truth, it was the general practice to use money in big figures. "In fact," said he, "it had been said that one gentleman in Montana, the candidate for an honorable office, had separated himself from about $800,000."

He did not attempt to assert the truth of the case, but he felt that Mr. Carter might have obtained his ideas about the corrupt use of money nearer home than was the state of Oregon.

TWO CENTS

A WALL OF DEATH

Blocks Entrance to Red Ash Mine,
West Virginia.

DEAD AND DYING BEHIND.

At Least Ten Bodies Were Taken Out by
Rescuers.

PROBABLY 40 YET ENTOMBED.

Altogether the Victims May Number 50
—Had the Explosion Occurred an Hour
Later, More Men Would Have Been in
the Mine and the Number of Victims
Greater—Thirty-seven of Those Dead
or Still in the Mine—Some Were Too
Mutilated for Identification—The General Belief Is That the Explosion Was Caused by Dust Being Ignited From
Lamps—Sad Scenes at the Mine Mouth.

FIRE CREEK, W. Va., March 7.—The first reports of the explosion at Red Ash mine were greatly exaggerated. The latest reports since are that there were only 50 miners entombed instead of 125. Only ten bodies have been taken out so far instead of 37, as previously reported, but it is believed that all of the 40 that are still in the mine will never be found alive. The explosion happened as the men were going into the mine in groups, and in couples in some instances, and they were strung along in this manner for over a mile, so that the work of rescue will require a long time. There were more men near the entrance who escaped than were lost.

The Red Ash mine is a large drift, and the explosion occurred near the entrance, which was thus closed by the falling slate, entombing a large number of miners.

The scene of the disaster is between this place and Thurmond, on the south branch of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway, and every assistance possible was rendered by the railway company and by the adjoining mining towns. Relief parties from great distances arrived as soon as possible. State Mine Inspector Pinckney, with a corps of experts and many workmen, has been on the ground, rendering all assistance possible and devoting his attention more toward relief than to an official investigation as to the cause of the disaster.

J. Fred Efinger, of Staunton, Va., the principal owner of the mines, spared no effort in the work of rescue and relief, and his manager, Ferdinand Howell, had all the men available at work in trying to clear away the debris and rescue the entombed men. The managers and bosses of all the mines in this district came to the scene as soon as possible and joined in the work of rescue. It is impossible to describe the amount of work done by this concentrated army of men, but they were greatly impeded because of the extent of the enormous blockade at the entrance to the drift. The large heavy side tires of the entrance were blown out to some distance, together with a lot of heavy timbers. Even mules were blown out some distance.

The force of such an explosion caused an immediate falling of the slate and other debris, so that the entrance was filled up for a great distance and the difficulties in digging through it caused delay in the work of rescue. As many men as could work at one time were digging away with all their might and were relieved in short relays by other men so as to expedite the work of rescue as many as possible.

At the first successful strike of the workers 10 bodies were recovered. Seven of them were already dead and the other three were dying. As the miners were located at different places in the drift, and the explosion caused the falling slate to blockade the rooms in different parts of the mine, the work of rescue met with one great obstruction after another. At the mouth of the mine the scene was beyond description, the wives and children and the neighbors of those who were known to be entombed were there in full force, and their anxiety and distress were most intense. While they were all seeking to help those who were rescued and to get the mine reopened, yet these bereaved people were for the most part in the way of the rescuers and had to be held back from the entrance.

The mine is one of the largest in West Virginia and was very heavily timbered in the different drifts. It was for this reason feared that those who had not been killed by falling debris at the time of the explosion would be pinned by these connecting timbers and suffer death from suffocation. Air was forced into the mine by engines on the surface, which were kept working after the explosion, but it was found that air could be pumped into the drift for only a short distance, as the coal, stone and earth shut off all possibility of reaching the interior. The pumps and all other machinery in the mine were demolished, so that everything had to be done through temporary arrangements on the surface.

After the men got under headway in the work of rescue, they reached the first party in less than an hour, but they met greater difficulties after that time. It was then that telegrams were sent to Montgomery, Charleston and other places for physicians, nurses and caskets, but during the greater part of the day there was use only for the caskets.

The estimates on the number in the mines when the explosion occurred are based on the number who entered at a 7 o'clock. The manager stated that by 8 o'clock or 8:30 a.m. there would have been twice as many men in the mines.

The population of this mining village is only 500. All are miners, and the calamity will reach almost every little home in the town.

Those working on the rescue relays said that the scene became more terrible as they got further into the mine. The men became almost faint of heart when they struck a place filled with dead bodies.

Most of the bodies that cannot be identified or recognized have been placed in the large blacksmith shop of the Red Ash Coal company, and that place presents the appearance of a horrible morgue. Although the bodies are mangled beyond recognition, yet they are surrounded by those who are in distress and hunting their lost friends.

The general belief is that the explosion occurred by contact with dust when the miners entered with their lights and that it was not due to fire damp, as has been currently reported all day. Nearly all the men employed in the mine were white, only about one-tenth being colored, and most of the men were married and had families in the little cottages near the tipple of the great mine.

Some of the bodies were so mangled as to be beyond recognition.

Among the dead and those known to have gone into the mine were these:

B. B. Long, fire boss.
Fret Long, workman.
Tom Long, trapper.

UPRISING OF DUTCH

Joined by Others in Prieska and Kenhardt Districts.

PIET WOOLMAN IS THE LEADER.

Joubert Reported In Command of Boers
Near Osfontein—Supplies Being Pushed
Forward to Roberts—Both Armies Preparing for a Struggle.

CAPETOWN, March 7.—Nearly the whole of the Dutch population of the Prieski and Kenhardt districts are in rebellion. Many of the Dutch from neighboring districts are reported to have joined them, notably Piet Woolman, who will lead the rebels.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch to The Standard from Osfontein, dated Sunday, March 4, contained the following:

"General Joubert is reported to be in supreme command of the Boer forces here."

LONDON, March 7.—Mr. Roberts still pauses in the neighborhood of Osfontein while stores, remounts and fresh troops stream toward him from the Cape. The British position also continues to improve in the minor spheres of the campaign. Natal is clear of Boers and Cape Colony is nearly so.

The Boers seemingly are pursuing the course commanded by the strategists, and are concentrating to resist the British main army. Various messages from correspondents with Lord Roberts report that the enemy are increasing continually on his front.

ATTACK ON CECIL RHODES.

London Paper Said He Would Some Time
Defy England.

LONDON, March 7.—The Morning Leader contains the following: "Of one thing we may be certain, Cecil Rhodes, who knows South Africa, has made up his mind that the annexation of the republics will not bring the lasting peace which our imperialists prophesy. Mr. Rhodes is so sure that this will not happen that he is prepared to set to work at once on the fortifications of Kimberley."

"We incline to think that Mr. Rhodes is preparing for a possible armed conflict with the imperial faction which he fought at the polls and in parliament until 1895. He is preparing to resist any attempt on their part to interfere in South African affairs either in the Dutch elector, which vote is already threatened, or of the Kaffir laborer, who seems doomed to virtual slavery."

"That is not, indeed, an extravagant hypothesis. Rhodes has consistently maintained a policy of Africa for the Afrikaner, and on his lips the latter word is synonymous with financiers. He will be loyal to the English flag just so long as it continues to be a valuable commercial asset."

BRITISH OCCUPIED STORMBERG.

General Buller Reported Natal Practically Clear of Boers.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch from Lord Roberts contained the following:

"OSFONTEIN, March 6.—General Gatacre occupied Stormberg yesterday. The lines of railway north and west will now be repaired. General Clements is at Joubert's siding station, beyond Colesberg. The Duke of Marlborough, with the Oxford company of the Imperial Yeomanry, has left Cape Town for Naaupoort.

"General Buller reports Natal now practically clear of the enemy and that he cannot hear of any formed body of them anywhere. The Boers left some ambulances full of their sick, from which the mules had been taken for transport service."

GRANTED HAWAII'S REQUEST.

Cabinet Decides to Grant Money Requested to Fight the Plague.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—At the cabinet meeting, the recommendation of the Hawaiian council that they be authorized to expend $300,000 in the suppression of the bubonic plague and in the relief of distressed natives was formally approved. Some doubt was expressed as to the authority of the Hawaiian council to make this expenditure, but the opinion was unanimous that the gravity of the situation justified that course, and the necessary directions will be forwarded at once.

Porto Rican postal affairs were also considered. A large part of the time of the meeting was taken up with a discussion on the Porto Rican tariff bill.

EIGHT AMERICANS KILLED.

Among Those Dead, Reported by General
Otis, Was Lieutenant Kochler.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—General Otis cabled the war department a list of casualties in the Philippines, comprising eight killed and twenty-two wounded. Among those killed was First Lieutenant Edgar F. Kochler, Ninth infantry, who met his death at Tinuba, March 4. He was a native of Illinois.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS MET.

Feasibility of Extending the Order to Foreign Lands Doubted.

NEW HAVEN, March 7.—The annual meeting of the national council, Knights of Columbus, was held in this city.

Several important matters were scheduled for consideration, the most important being the report of a special committee appointed two years ago on the assessment rate in comparison with the mortality tables of insurance companies and fraternal orders, and petitions from various countries in South America and islands in the West Indies, asking that the order be extended to those territories. Considerable doubt was expressed as to the feasibility of extending the order into foreign lands.

TYPHOID PATIENTS DRIVEN OUT.

Fire at Turtle Creek, Pa., May Have Had Bad Effect on Sick Persons.

PITTSBURG, March 7.—Fire destroyed three dwellings at Turtle Creek, and the three families that occupied the buildings were rendered homeless. One of the houses was occupied by Samuel Wilkison and his family, five members of which were lying in sickbeds at the time of the fire. Mrs. Wilkison and four of the children were ill with typhoid fever, and it is feared that the excitement and exposure which followed the burning of their home may have a bad effect on some of the patients.

MONEY GIVEN TO MRS. LAWTON.

Also Letters, Many of Which Contained
Tributes to Her Husband's Memory.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—General Corbin turned over to Mrs. Lawton, widow of the late Major General Lawton, the fund subscribed by the people of the stock. It amounted to $98,432.07.

In addition to the money, the committee also turned over to Mrs. Lawton all the letters received from subscribers to the fund, many of which contain beautiful tributes to the memory of her lamented husband.

ALFRED HARMER DEAD

"Father of the House" Died at Germantown, Pa.

HAD BEEN ILL SINCE NOVEMBER.

Attended Opening of the House, but Before Christmas Recess He Had to Return Home Kidney Trouble Attributed to Be the Cause of His Death.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Congressman Alfred C. Harmer, of the Fifth Pennsylvania district, the "Father of the House," died at his home in Germantown, a suburb of this city. Mr. Harmer had been ill since last November, when he was stricken with a severe attack of kidney trouble.

He recovered sufficiently to attend the opening of congress in December, but before the Christmas recess he returned to Philadelphia and has since that time been confined to his bed.

A few days ago he suffered a relapse and steadily failed until last evening, when he died, surrounded by his wife, three sons and two daughters.

COREIN OFFERS TO QUIT.

That Is If Anything Wrong With His Army Record Can Be Found.
Wrote to Davis.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The resolution adopted by the senate calling for a complete record of the court-martial which tried Adjutant General Corbin when lieutenant-colonel of the Fourteenth colored infantry, on a charge of cowardice, and other information as to his military career, called for a mass of papers that will require a week's time to copy according to the estimates of the war department.

General Corbin, in anticipation of the reply, addressed to Senator Davis, of Minnesota, an appeal for an immediate examination of his soldierly record from the day he entered the service of the United States as a 19-year-old boy 48 years ago up to the present time. Moreover, he authorizes the senator to present his (Corbin's) resignation to the president if the search reveals a suggestion of unworthiness. The letter includes the findings of the court-martial which most honorably acquitted Lieutenant-Colonel Corbin of the charge. General Grant's letter conferring upon him two brevets for gallant services at the time he was charged with cowardice, and, finally, a letter from the colonel of the regiment who preferred the charge, praising his work in the campaign.

Charged With Circulating False Reports,
Causing Depression in Brooklyn
Rapid Transit.

NEW YORK, March 7.—A special grand jury brought in a presentment before Justice Fursman in the criminal term of the supreme court, together with indictments, against six men, making them in part responsible for false reports that had been circulated about Brooklyn rapid transit, with a resulting depression of the stock.

The men indicted are Alfred R. Goslin, who was arrested in Philadelphia; Harry J. Alexander, an advertising agent; Charles T. Davis, editor of The Wall Street Review, and Eugene L. Packer, all three of whom were put under arrest in this city; Warner T. Alexander and Davis were committed to the Tombs, being unable to furnish a bond.

FRANCHISE GRANTED

BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS FOR NEW PHONES.

Electrical Department of the Mill to Begin Work Tomorrow—Chester News.

The county commissioners of Hancock county have granted to the United States Telephone company a franchise to erect a telephone system in and about Chester and throughout Hancock county. The company, upon receiving the decision of the commissioners, put a force of men at work cutting and trimming poles for use on the route to be traversed about the county. These poles will be taken from the hills of Hancock county. It will require some months to complete the lines from Chester to Cumberland, but no time is to be lost in commencing the work.

Tomorrow morning the electrical department at the Chester rolling mill will be placed in operation. Mr. Meredith, of the mill company, stated yesterday afternoon that some of the hardest part of the construction of the mill had been completed, and from now on good time would be made in other departments of the works.

He Will Seek Redress.

The statement was made in Chester yesterday that C. A. Heck, of Allegheny, who was charged with refusing to pay toll across the Liverpool bridge, intended to carry his case to the higher courts should it be decided against him in the lower courts. Tongaline

TRADE MARK

"In the fall of 1891 I had a severe attack of muscular rheumatism which settled in my right arm and shoulder. Tongaline was highly recommended to me and I determined to give it a thorough trial. I took six or eight tea-spoonful doses daily, diluted in water, with plenty of hot water and inside of two days was relieved to such an extent that the pain had almost entirely left me. By continuing the treatment a short time longer I was thoroughly cured and I am gratified to state that there has been no recurrence of the trouble. Since then I have frequently recommended Tongaline to friends suffering from rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, etc. and I have yet to hear of a single instance where it failed to cure the disease."

WINE OF CARDUI

Woman Knows Woman.

ZURICH, KAN., Jan. 31.

I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.

MRS. V. M. BOISVERT.

MELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it?

CITIZEN AND SOLDIER

And Eminently Fitted and Qualified For the Berth to Which He Aspires.

The announcement of C. C. Baker as a candidate for congress in the Eighteenth district will be found in another column. He is known all over this county. He has been a resident of Columbiana county for 37 years. This would entitle him to be considered a home candidate. Since leaving here, and for the past 10 years, he has been a resident of Alliance, not more than a stone's throw from Columbiana county. His parents moved to Unity township when he was 10 years old, where he lived until the outbreak of the civil war.

At the age of 18 he enlisted as a private in Company C, Sixth Ohio cavalry, and served three and one half years. After the war he moved to Fairfield township where he lived until his election as county auditor in 1880. He served two terms as county auditor. No county official ever retired from office enjoying to a higher degree the respect, confidence and good will of the people. He was kind, courteous and considerate, and in addition possessed unusual business qualifications. It was a pleasure to transact business in the auditor's office. Mr. Baker is a successful business man and is thoroughly informed as to the wants of his district. He will be an unusually strong candidate and will make a model representative.

He will look after the interests of his constituents in a thoroughly business-like manner.

HE DIED HAPPY.

Little Charlie Quayle Was Content, With No Fears as to the Future.

In yesterday's edition of the NEWS REVIEW was given an account of the death of a boy by the name of Charlie Quayle, who was bitten by a pet dog, supposed to be mad. The little fellow had no fear of death, having full and complete trust and perfect faith in the Master's mercy. He summoned strong men to his bedside and told them of certain things connected with their lives, features which they fondly hoped had not seen the light of day or gained publicity, and in a kindly, loving manner, obtained the promise from them that the evil things in their lives should cease to exist. Afterwards, Charlie smilingly told a minister of the Gospel respecting the above conversation, and rejoiced in the fact that even a little boy could do much good, assuring the minister that he held no fear of what was called death. It was wonderful testimony. "And a little child shall lead them."

TAYLER'S PLAN.

Columbiana Congressman Has a Scheme for Disposing of Contests.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—[Special]—Congressman R. W. Tayler, who was chairman of the select committee which had charge of the Brigham H. Roberts case, and who is now chairman of the house elections committee No. 1, has a new plan for the hearing and disposition of contested election cases. He proposes that the English system be patterned after by this government; that is, that a commission of three members, none of whom shall be members of congress, be selected, who shall perform the work now done by the elections committee. The commission should be non-partisan and sit as a court, and, if such a thing were possible, should be given final jurisdiction in all the cases which come before it for hearing. Mr. Tayler says he may introduce a bill during the present session embodying this idea.

NOT ENOUGH.

There Is Too Much Work For the Amount of Money Paid the Township Trustees.

The township trustees of this city are very much in favor of the bill introduced in the legislature by a representative from Richland county increasing the salaries of the trustees. The trustees now get $150 per year, and they say it is not enough for the amount of work they have to do. One of the local trustees also thinks it would be a good plan to do away with the three board idea and let one man attend to the work and pay him a good salary. He thinks the work could be done a great deal better this way.

HIGHLY ENDORSED.

What the Republican Paper at the State Capital Says of Mr. Baker.

Ex State Senator Silas J. Williams, of Alliance, who recently announced his candidacy for the Republican congressional nomination in the Eighteenth district, in a card published last night, states that, after making a careful canvass of the field, he has decided that he is not the most available man to unite the opposition to Congressman Tayler for the fourth term, and withdraws from the race in favor of Hon. Charles O. Baker, of Alliance, who, it is announced, has consented to become a candidate. Mr. Baker is very popular in Columbiana county, where he served two terms as auditor, and it is claimed he will secure a majority of the delegates in Tayler's own bailiwick, to say nothing of his strength in Stark and Mahoning, where he is looked upon as a sure winner.—Ohio State Journal.

NEW STATE BOARD.

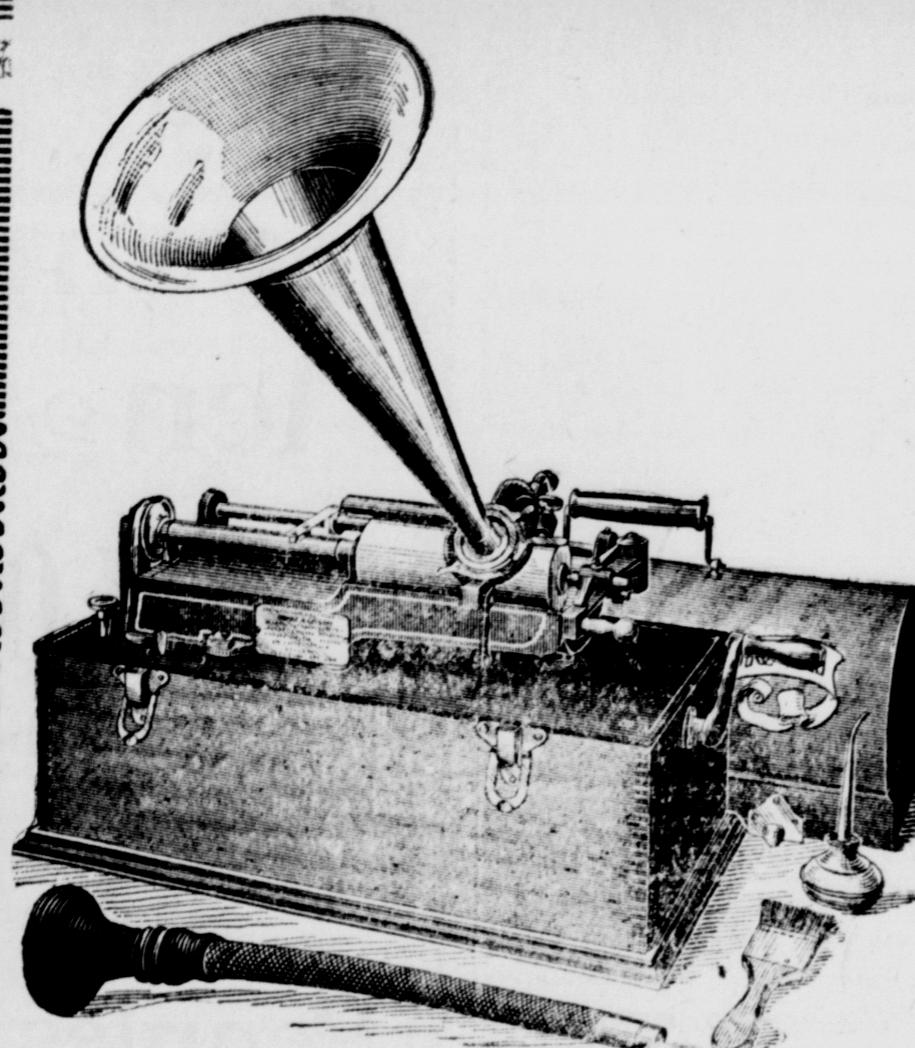

Those who have been asking council to create the office of plumbing inspector will be interested to learn that a bill has been introduced in the state legislature providing for the creation of a state board of examiners and licenses for plumbers, consisting of five members, three of whom must be master plumbers, to examine all plumbers as to their qualifications for pursuing that avocation.

PENSIONS FOR TEACHERS.

The bill now before the legislature for the pensioning of school teachers is meeting with vigorous opposition from the teachers themselves. They claim that the bill will work an injustice in assessing the younger teachers to create a pension fund that the great majority of them will not remain long enough in the profession to enjoy. They have great hopes that all will get married before they have been teaching long enough to draw a pension.

INTERESTING TO DRUGGISTS.

The druggists of the state are interested in a bill now before the legislature which seeks to regulate the sale of patent medicines by prohibiting druggists from recommending any preparation which they have for sale. If the bill becomes a law the druggists say

They will not be allowed to recommend my medicine to a customer for the commoner ailments, such as colds, sore throats, sprains and a number of other minor sicknesses, and will be prevented from recommending and compounding any simple remedy which might be called for by a person in distress. The doctors favor the bill and the druggists naturally are opposing it.

BE A REPUBLICAN.

Yes, if you profess to be a Republican, carry your profession and principle out to the letter. If you believe that the Republican party best represents the financial, commercial and business interests of the nation, then stand by your party and render it all the assistance which lies in your power. This paper is a Republican paper and flies the flag of the party at its head, and will do battle in the cause of true Republicanism to the full extent of its ability. We shall battle along the line of clean journalism. Our Democratic neighbors have rights that we are bound to respect, and no scurrilous or malicious attacks shall be made upon them in these columns. We have Democratic friends whom we honor and respect, good citizens. We differ with them politically, and feel sorry that they are so blinded to their material interests as to vote as they do, when they possess the power to be in the ranks of our Grand Old Party. All men of true courage despise a coward, a trickster and a dissembler, and have no use for the poor creatures who dare not fly the flag of any party, but who simply exist as bloodsuckers, aiming to secure the "FAT" of political life from all parties, holding out a pleading hand and crying "give! give!! give!!!". Who PRAY "good Lord-good devil" and PREY on everything and everybody.

Made March 15—Terms Were Satisfactory.

The Knowles, Taylor & Anderson sewerpipe works in the East End has been sold by C. A. Smith to the American Clay Manufacturing company, or the sewerpipe combine. The new company will take possession of the works March 15.

Mr. Smith, when seen this morning, said: "Yes, the works have been sold to the American Clay Manufacturing company. I will turn over the plant to them March 15 and after that date will be out of the sewerpipe business. The transfer includes the plant, the site (eight acres), and all material. All I retain of the original purchase from Knowles, Taylor & Anderson is 26 acres of ground outside the factory site. I have no idea as to whether the plant will be kept running, as I know nothing of the intention of the new owners. I owned the entire 5,000 shares of the company, and the terms of the sale were satisfactory."

He bore the marks of the encounter on his face and when Schriver was taken before Squire Rose he was fined $14.60. When Powell entered the saloon to arrest Schriver he found four men seated around the table and cards on the table. There will probably be another action entered, as there is an ordinance prohibiting card playing in saloons.

VACANCIES.

The Democrats Have Two Persons Who Have No Desire for Office.

The Democrats already have two vacancies on their ticket to fill, as Robert Hill declines to be a candidate for the position of justice of the peace and John Schmelzenbach, who was nominated for the board of education, is a Prohibitionist, and will not be a Democratic candidate. ROBERTS REPORTS BOERS IN RETREAT.

Closely Pursued by Advancing British Troops.

NOT ENGAGEMENT THIS MORNING

Boers, Unable to Meet Roberts' Army, Retreated, With a Brigade of British Hard on Their Rear--Joubert Is Waiting a Chance.

LONDON, March 7.—[Special]—The war department made public this afternoon a dispatch just received from Lord Roberts, in which the field marshal states that he advanced this morning and that the enemy is in full retreat, closely followed by his troops.

Newspaper dispatches received late this afternoon state that Roberts' army, beyond a short brisk engagement met with little resistance, the overpowering force under the British commander rendering any attempt to make a stand futile. The Boers have now fallen back out of touch with Roberts' force, a detachment of which is endeavoring to hang on to the retreating burghers, so that Roberts may be kept fully posted upon their movements. Meanwhile the British are steadily advancing into the Free state. Joubert and his army are supposed to be in the northeast awaiting a favorable opportunity to attack the invaders.

From Engine Rooms of Four Potteries.

THEY WERE CAUGHT IN THE ACT

Monday Evening by Engineer McShane, of the Thompson Pottery, as They Were Coming From the Plant With a Sack Full.

To James McShane, chief engineer at the Thompson pottery, belongs the credit of putting a stop to the stealing of brasses from the engines of several potteries about the city. For some time brass valves, bearings and slides have been missed from the engines when the engineers would go to their work in the morning, but who took the brass was not discovered until Monday night.

McShane was returning to the pottery Monday evening when he noticed several boys coming from the building with a bag. It was so heavy the boys could not make much headway, and McShane, thinking something wrong, stopped the boys and looking into the bag found a lot of brass that had been taken from the engine room a short time before. He took their names and made a report to the office but no arrests have yet been made.

Mr. George Thompson, when seen today, said: "It is estimated that we have had at least $150 worth of brass taken from our engine room, but a portion of this has been recovered. The boys took the brass from our factory and sold it to a junk dealer in Center alley. We have decided not to make any prosecutions unless we find that we cannot recover all that has been taken. The dealers who received the brass have said they would return all."

It is stated that brass has been taken from the engines at the Cartwright, Laughlin No 1 and Knowles, Taylor & Knowles potteries, and it is thought the same crowd of boys were implicated in each instance.

A DAY IN WALL STREET.

Final Disposition of Financial Bill
Evidently Awaited by Bull Contingent.
Features of Market.

NEW YORK, March 7.—On the Stock Exchange, Tuesday, very earnest efforts were made to weaken Sugar, but the utmost that could be achieved was a three point decline, offerings of the stock being comparatively light. Third Avenue was strong, rising an extreme $5\frac{1}{2}$ and imparting sympathetic strength to the other local traction stocks. The most notable examples of the bear tactics were furnished by the international paper stocks, the com mon falling $4\frac{1}{2}$ and rallying $2\frac{1}{4}$, and the preferred falling $7\frac{1}{2}$ and rallying $4\frac{1}{2}$; Pressed Steel Car, which dropped $7\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied $5\frac{1}{2}$; American Hoop, which fell $3\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied $1\frac{1}{4}$; Standard Rope and its bond issues, which were raided down from $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 8 points, with rallies extending from 1 to nearly 4 points, and People's Gas, which fell $1\frac{1}{2}$ and rallied $2\frac{1}{2}$.

Practically all the iron and steel stocks were down from 1 to 2 points, and many recovered a good portion of the loss and there were other less striking examples all through the list of specialties. In the railroad list St. Paul, Burlington and Baltimore and Ohio showed an extreme decline of a point or over, but the net changes in the railroads are small throughout. It is evident that the final disposition of the financial bill by congress is awaited by the bull contingent, who are generally confident that the provisions for additional bank circulation will be enacted into law and will result in a notable expansion of the currency.

The large buying of government bonds by national banks all over the country, and the expert estimates which are current of the profit offered on circulation by the new provisions, are the grounds of this confidence. Meantime the money market is working constantly closer, and the favorable factors in the outlook are ignored, in the fear that the available supply of money will not bridge the interval until the expected relief.

The bond market was dull and irregular. Total sales, par value, \$1,335,000. United States old 4's and 5's advanced $\frac{1}{2}$ and the 3's $\frac{1}{4}$ in the bid price.

The Chicago Grain Market.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The prediction of a cold wave, a higher spot market at Liverpool, firmness in northwestern markets and talk of export business were supports in a fairly active wheat market Tuesday, May closing $\frac{1}{2}\text{c}$ over Monday. May corn closed $\frac{1}{2}\text{c}$ and May oats $\frac{1}{2}\text{c}$ up. Provisions were dull, but closed a trifle improved.

Fool the Bees and the People.

"People buy come honey," said a man from the country, "believing that the fact that it is sealed by the honest little bee precludes the possibility of fraud. The fact is that the bees of many professional 'honey' raisers do nothing the livelong summer but pack glucose into their hives from an open barrel that is left standing close by. The bee will not search fragrant flowers the livelong day for a trifling amount of pure honey when he can get glucose. The honey men see that there is plenty of glucose handy, and instead of one pound of pure honey they add the bees in putting ten pounds of glucose on the market."

"Human ingenuity has not devised a way for making and sealing the honeycomb, or the bee would be dispensed with altogether. In handling the glucose the bees give it a honeyish flavor, and if you complain to the bee man that it is not as sweet and sticky as it should be he will tell you that it is the early crop and that the heavy rains make it thin."

"I know a man who keeps 50 hives of bees on the roof of his store in the city, and by rustling up plenty of glucose he gets enough 'honey' out of the buzzing slaves to do a wholesale business in honey. Why, his bees never saw a flower and would stay at a honeysuckle if they happened to come near one. He will not even let the poor things have a recess to get a drink of water, but keeps a pan of fresh water near the hives for them to drink."—New York Mail and Express.

An Immortal Oration.

The funeral oration of Pericles is pretty nearly what was actually spoken, or else it is the substance of the speech written out in the historian's own words, says James Ford Rhodes in The Atlantic. Its intensity of feeling and the fitting of it so well into the situation indicate it to be a living contemporaneous document, and at the same time it has that universal application which we note in so many speeches of Shakespeare.

A few years after our civil war a lawyer in a city of the middle west who had been selected to deliver the Memorial day oration came to a friend of his in despair because he could write nothing but the commonplaces about those who had died for the Union and for the freedom of a race which had been uttered many times before, and he asked for advice.

"Take the funeral oration of Pericles for a model," was the reply. "Use his words where they will fit and dress up the rest to suit our day."

The orator was surprised to find how much of the oration could be used bodily and how much, with adaptation, was germane to his subject.

Averted the Storm.

A certain congressman went home at a very early hour in the morning. He had made a night of it with some friends. He knew that his conduct would be considered reprehensible by his better half, and so, as he ascended the steps of his modest home, he racked his brain for some plan to avert the lady's wrath. As he entered the hall he saw an umbrella. Instantly it occurred to him that the umbrella might be his salvation.

He carried the umbrella up stairs. Seating himself on a chair in the corner of the bedroom, he raised the rain guard over his head, and then he coughed loudly. His wife awoke and saw in the dim gaslight her liege lord sitting solemnly under the raised umbrella.

"What are you doing?" she asked in natural surprise.

"It is 3 o'clock, my dear," said he, "and I am waiting for the storm."

The congressman's ready wit saved him from a Caudle lecture. He is worrying now, however, to find an equally effective act for the next time he stays out late.—Washington Post.

The Effect of His Face.

An amusing story is told at the expense of Winston Churchill, the author. An old man, seeing the picture of Churchill displayed in the window of a Baltimore bookseller, inquired of a bystander whom it represented.

"Winston Churchill," was the reply. "Where does he preach?"

Being told that Mr. Churchill was not a preacher, he asked: "Ain't he? What did you say his name is?"

"Winston Churchill. He writes novels."

"Does what?"

"Writes novels."

The man shook his head with a look of pity and declared: "Too bad! Too bad! He has a good face."

IN THE BABY'S EYES.

What is the dream in the baby's eyes
As he lies and blinks in a mute surprise,
With little wee hands that aimlessly go;
Hither and thither and to and fro;
With little, wee feet that shall lead him? God
knows,

But a prayer from my heart like a benison goes,
Bundle of helplessness, yonder he lies.

What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

What does he wonder and what does he know?
That we have forgotten so long, long ago?
Bathed in the dawn light, what does he see?
That slow years have hidden from you and me?

Out of the yesterday seeth he yet?

The things that in living he soon shall forget,
All that is hidden beyond the blue skies.

What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

Speak to me, little one, ere you forget
What is the thought that is lingering there yet?
Where is the land where the yesterdays meet,
Waiting and waiting the mornings to greet?

You wee, funny bundle, who only will blink,
What do you wonder, and what do you think?

Bright as the moonlight asleep in the skies,
What is the dream in my baby's eyes?

Never ate foreign meat.

It Doesn't Pay to Be Too Sure Until One Knows All the Facts.

A certain Major Brownjones, who made it his boast that he never allowed American or colonial meat to be served at his table, recently visited an old comrade in Liverpool. One night at dinner a most delicious saddle of (apparently) Welsh mutton appeared, to which the major did ample justice.

"Ah," he observed, "I wish that my butcher in London would send me stuff like that, and yet he deals only in the best British meat."

"Well," said his friend, "as a matter of fact you have been eating New Zealand mutton. But it's only fair to say that I get it from a friend who is a large wholesale importer."

"By Jove, you don't say so!" exclaimed the guest. "I wish he'd tell me where I can get the like in town."

"We'll go and see him tomorrow," said the host. The visit was duly paid to the meat monger, who smiled when he heard the Londoner's eulogy and explanation.

"Tell me," he returned after listening to the epicure's remarks, "in what part of London you reside, and I dare say I can give you the address of a retail butcher who will supply you with exactly the same sort of mutton as that which you like so much." The major handed him his card.

"Ah," observed the importer, "there's the very man within two streets of your house. We supply him with all his meat. Here's his address," he added, handing a slip of paper to the seeker after succulent joints.

The major read, the major started, the major frowned, the major, truth to say, cried vengeance, and no wonder, for the address was that of his own butcher, who dealt only in home produce.

The Bottle at Ship Launches.

Down to Charles II's time it was customary to name and baptize a ship after she was launched, sometimes a week or two after. The old Tudor method used for men-of-war was still in use. Pepys' "Diary" shows that. The ship was safely got afloat, after which some high personage went on board with a special silver "standing cup," or "flagon" of wine, out of which he drank, naming the ship and pouring a libation on the quarter deck. The cup was then generally given to the dockyard shipwright as a memento.

When did the present usage of naming and baptizing a ship before she is sent afloat come in? I trace the last explicit mention of the old method to 1664, when the Royal Katherine was launched (see Pepys). The first mention of smashing a bottle of wine on the bows of an English man-of-war that I have found is in a contemporary newspaper cutting of May, 1780, describing the christening of H. M. S. Magnanime at Deptford, but nothing is hinted that it was then a new custom.

Notes and Queries.

Clear and to the Point.

The following is taken from a hotel advertisement in the Calcutta Times: "Gentlemen who come in hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, &c., and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, and if not so they will not be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager of the place, and should they want to say anything they must order the manager for one, not any one else, and unless they bring it to the notice of the manager they will be charged for the least things according to the hotel rate, and no fuss will be allowed afterward about it."

MINING CAMP TRICKS.

One Instance Where a Scheme Worked the Wrong Way.

"There is a great deal that is out of the ordinary in mining," said Samuel Mott of Boise City, Ida., "although I think from personal experience it is probably more so in the relation than in the actual happening. In every mining camp I have known there have always been charges that those working a vein had gone through into the next claim in taking out the ore, and consequently were taking out what wasn't theirs. These claims it was always difficult to substantiate, for the reason that the offender, of course, would not allow the offended to enter his workings, and without a survey it would be impossible to make out a case. Every subterfuge and excuse possible was resorted to get into a suspected mine."

"I remember one case in an apex of a vein suit, where the workings had been temporarily shut down and a man called 'Johnny Come Lately,' heavily armed, was on guard. The other side had tried again and again to get by 'Johnny,' but had always failed, when one man, who knew that 'Johnny' was an enthusiastic hunter, hired an acquaintance of his to stroll by with a gun over his arm and to engage 'Johnny' in a conversation about 'bar.' It worked to a charm, and while he was thus engrossed they managed to slip in and survey the mine."

"Then there was the case of the Last Chance against the Tyler. In this case the workings happened to run together, and the Last Chance people were working the same vein from underneath that the Tyler owners were working from on top. Knowing they would sooner or later break through, the Tyler people prepared smudge—that is, saturated cordwood that would give forth a tremendous smoke—which, they hoped, would drive the Last Chance people out of their mine. But when they finally set it off it went the other way and made the Tyler workings absolutely untenable. Indeed three of the miners were overcome and were rescued only with great difficulty."—New York Tribune.

WOULDN'T INTRODUCE HIM.

The Young Woman Rather Thought She Needed the Introduction.

A young man with a beetling brow and a nice new necktie entered a law office in one of the big downtown office buildings and inquired for a member of the firm, a Mr. Younger, whose name he pronounced with strict regard for the rules of orthoepia.

"Is Mr. Young-er in?" he asked of the young woman stenographer, with whom he seemed to be acquainted.

"You mean Mr. Youn-ger?" she replied, pronouncing the "g" hard.

"Can it be he pronounces it that way?" asked the caller, feigning surprise. "Of course it's his privilege to pronounce it as he chooses; there's no set rule for pronouncing names. But you know Y-o-u-n-g-e-r doesn't spell Youn-ger, but Young-er."

"No, I didn't know it," she answered as one who doesn't care. "But here he comes now. That's him going into his private office."

"Excuse me, but that's not him."

"No? Pray, who is it then?"

"It's he."

They stared at each other for ten seconds, and then the young man said: "Will you introduce me to Mr. Younger?"

"No!" she retorted. "Since you seem to know so much more about him than I do, I think you'd better introduce me."

There was an ominous click in the rattle of the typewriter as the young man entered the private office and presented his card.—Chicago Chronicle.

Mint Mark Collections.

The mint mark collection is the latest thing in the line of numismatics. It is the fad of the specialist and has little attraction for the amateur. The object is to secure complete sets of perfect specimens of all the coins issued from the different mints.

A great many people are scarcely aware that there is any way to distinguish the coins issued from the different mints. They may not have noticed the small "S" or "O" beneath the eagle or under the wreath, and showing that the piece was coined at San Francisco or Carson City, or if it bears an "O" at New Orleans. And they may or may not know that if it has no mint mark it comes from the "mother mint" at Philadelphia. But the mint mark collector will see these little letters in an instant and is very apt to know just how many dimes, quarters, dollars or half dollars were turned out at any of the mints during any year since 1794.—Minneapolis Journal.

How He Obtained Quiet.

At one of the meetings during Mr. Moody's services in Kansas City hymn sheets were distributed by the ushers just previous to his address. He was feeling very tired, and speaking was a great exertion; so, fearing the noise that would result should the audience rustle them, he resolved to get rid of them. He called out, "Will everybody who has a hymn sheet hold it up?"

The sheets were held up all over the hall. Mr. Moody shouted, "Now shake them!"

Twelve thousand flimsy sheets of paper were shaken vigorously. They made an indescribably musical sound. There is nothing to compare it with. One can only say it was a vast rustle.

"That will do," called Mr. Moody at the top of his voice. The sound ceased. "All right," said Mr. Moody. "Now sit on those hymn sheets." The audience sat on them. Having taken this precaution against interruption, Mr. Moody began his sermon.

The funeral of Bishop Mahlon H. Gilbert, of the Protestant Episcopal church, occurred at St. Paul.

The coroner's jury, investigating the death of the Schmidtapp family, of Cincinnati, in the Missouri Pacific wreck, near Independence, Mo., returned a verdict censuring the railway company.

QUAY'S PAIRED VOTE SHOULD ESTOP HIM.

Simon So Asserted as to the Colonel's Attitude Toward Corbett—Denied Carter's Charge.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Mr. Simon (Or.) called up in the senate the resolution on the seating of former Senator Quay, and addressed the senate in answer to the speech of Mr. Carter delivered the day before, in the course of which the Montana senator adverted to the reasons which induced him to vote against Mr. Corbett, who was an appointee of the governor of Oregon. He said Mr. Carter had made the distinct charge that Mr. Corbett had corrupted the legislature and defeated the desire of the people of Oregon. He could not, he said, permit this "unjust and untrue charge to go unchallenged." As a member of the Oregon legislature at that time he declared that Mr. Corbett was in no way responsible for the failure of the legislature to elect a senator or for the failure of the house to organize. The failure of the Oregon house to organize, he said, was due to former Senator Mitchell, and to him alone, and he denied the imputation of corruption on the part of Mr. Corbett. Mr. Simon then directed attention to the fact that Mr. Quay, as a member of the senate, was paired against Mr. Corbett and said on principles of justice Mr. Quay should be estopped by his paired vote against Mr. Corbett.

Mr. Carter replied to Mr. Simon's statement. He had not spoken with a view to making a personal assault upon Mr. Corbett.

"I assigned as a reason for voting against Mr. Corbett the belief I entertained then and which I still entertain, that the proceeding in the organization of the legislature was a revolutionary proceeding, to which Mr. Corbett was party."

Mr. Carter then had read a letter discussing the situation from George C. Brownell, chairman of the joint assembly of the state of Oregon. He followed this letter with the assertion that Mr. Corbett and the governor of the state were in the combination not only to defeat Mitchell, but to elect Corbett. The latter's entire effort, he said, was to prevent the organization of the legislature in order that he might secure the appointment.

In reply Mr. Simon said he was induced to believe that Mr. Carter's statement were somewhat warped and exaggerated by the peculiar atmosphere of Montana politics, in which, if what he had heard about the capital during the past few weeks approximated the truth, it was the general practice to use money in big figures. "In fact," said he, "it has been said that one gentleman in Montana, the candidate for an honorable office, had separated himself from about $800,000."

He did not attempt to assert the truth of the case, but he felt that Mr. Carter might have obtained his ideas about the corrupt use of money nearer home than was the state of Oregon.
